

M&A Tax Guide
Latin America

Introduction

Latin America's rising economic profile has prompted an enormous increase in investment into and within the region. Given the anticipated growth potential, there has been an upsurge of merger and acquisition (M&A) activity in Latin America. Looking ahead, it is expected that M&A activity will continue to grow and that investors in Latin America will begin to look progressively outward for investment opportunities.

While M&A transactions can offer tremendous opportunities for growth, such transactions often give rise to tax, as well as other complexities that need to be carefully addressed if investor returns are not to be negatively impacted. The tax complexities, in particular, are compounded by the rapid pace with which legislation and practices are evolving. Deloitte stands ready to assist companies in managing their responses to the challenges that M&A transactions can present.

The M&A Tax Guide was developed as a practical, easy-to-follow general overview of tax and structuring considerations for those looking to invest in Latin America. Please consider contacting our local M&A tax teams if you require further information on the countries covered in the guide.

Sincerely,

Question	Response

Deal structure

Do the tax rules favor asset or equity deals?	Argentine legislation does not favor one type of deal structure over the other, although share deals generally are preferred because they are easier and usually result in a lower tax burden. Share deals are affected by income tax and potentially stamp taxes; assets deals also may be subject to indirect taxation (e.g. VAT, gross revenue taxes). Although tax-free reorganizations are possible, legal requirements may render them unsuitable in some cases.
Do the tax rules favor onshore or offshore holding structures?	The sale of shares or other equity interests in an Argentine entity by a foreign holding company is subject to a 15% income tax rate as opposed to a 35% rate if the shares held and sold by a resident holding company. Dividends or profits paid by a domestic entity to an Argentine holding company are not subject to the 10% withholding tax.
Are there significant restrictions on foreign investment?	Domestic and foreign investors generally are treated the same in Argentina, although restrictions apply to foreign investment in certain areas (e.g. rural land).
Are tax deductions typically available for acquisition financing costs or other acquisition costs?	There generally are no restrictions on the deduction of financing and acquisition expenses in an asset deal; however, the tax authorities typically disallow the deduction of such expenses in a share deal.
Can PIK (payment in kind) debt be structured?	The structuring of PIK debt/bonds is unusual in Argentina. Interest generally is deductible on an accrual basis unless it is due to a foreign related party (cash basis instead). Withholding tax applies on interest payments even if the interest is fully paid in kind. The applicability of transfer pricing, thin capitalization rules and foreign exchange rules should be taken into account.
Do thin capitalization rules apply?	The thin capitalization rules apply to debt owed to foreign controlling entities. The rules operate to disallow an interest deduction on debt owed to a foreign controlling entity or to a controlled entity resident in a tax treaty country. The excess interest is recharacterized as a dividend subject to withholding tax.
Are there minimum capital requirements?	The minimum capital varies depending on the business activities and legal structure of the company.
Is it possible to increase/decrease capital?	Capital increases are straightforward, but capital decreases involve a complex legal process that may take several months.

Post-deal tax management

What is the corporate income tax rate?	35%
Can cash be remitted overseas?	Argentina operates a complex foreign exchange control regime. Transfers of funds into and out of the country must be made according to Central Bank regulations. Restrictions are imposed on inbound and outbound investments, interest payments and other amounts payable in foreign currency. Dividends generally can be paid if audited financial statements are filed. Capital reimbursement may require Central Bank authorization, as do payments for service fees and royalties made to related entities or entities resident in a tax haven.
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On dividends paid to nonresident entities? Two types of withholding taxes may apply: i) a 10% withholding tax will apply to dividends and other profit distributions paid to resident individuals and nonresidents (both individuals and corporations). Dividends and profit distributions made to resident companies are not subject to tax. In-kind distributions in the form of shares or membership interests are not taxable. Dividends and other profit distributions by Argentine companies or local branches of foreign companies are subject to a 35% equalization tax on amounts paid in excess of their accumulated taxable income after certain adjustments.

Question	Response
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On dividends paid to nonresident entities?	Argentine companies or Argentine branches of foreign companies are subject to the equalization tax only if they exceed accumulated taxable income with certain adjustments. If applicable, the withholding tax is 35%.
	On interest payments made to nonresident entities?	A 35% rate generally applies, although a reduced rate of 15.05% applies to interest on loans granted by certain foreign financial institutions (in general, "non-offshore" institutions) and interest on loans granted to finance the acquisition of movable property. The rates may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
	On royalty payments made to nonresident entities?	The rates are 21%, 28% or 31.5%, depending on the type of royalty and whether certain requirements are met. The rates may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
Is tax levied on the receipt of foreign-source dividends?	Dividends received from foreign entities are subject to the ordinary 35% income tax rate, with a foreign tax credit granted for income taxes paid overseas.
Is there a limitation on the use of net operating losses (NOLs) by the successor?	Generally, under a share deal, there are no restrictions on the use of NOLs after the acquisition; however, in an asset deal, it is not possible to transfer NOLs to the successor entity. Tax-free reorganizations in the form of mergers and spinoffs may allow the passing of NOLs only if certain requirements are met, e.g. a two-year ownership period before and after the reorganization, etc.

Exit strategy

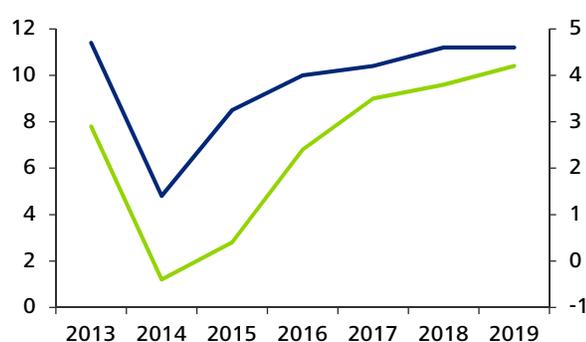

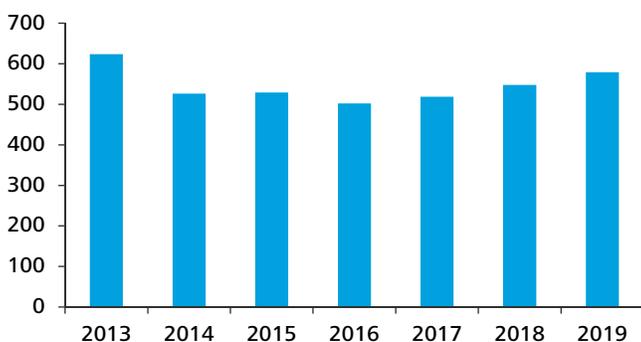

Is tax levied on capital gains at the level of a domestic seller?	Gains derived from the sale of shares by an Argentine company are subject to the 35% income tax rate.
Is withholding tax levied on the sale or disposition of a company?	Gains derived by a corporate nonresident on the sale of shares or other equity interest in an Argentine entity are taxed at the rate of 15% applicable on a net profit presumed to be 90% of the sale price (resulting in an effective rate of 13.5%), or 15% on the actual net profit, at the option of the seller. Gains derived by a nonresident individual are subject to an effective 13.5% tax on the sale price.
Are there specific tax rules governing the exit strategy for investment through an offshore vehicle?	In principle, no income tax is triggered on the indirect transfer of shares resulting from the sale of an off-shore vehicle; however, substance-over-form provisions should be closely monitored. Stringent corporate law requirements may apply on investment through offshore vehicles.
Are there substantial sales/turnover taxes on exit?	VAT, turnover tax and stamp duties may apply to an asset deal. Stamp duties may apply on the SPA in a share deal.

Summary

A slight resurgence of M&A activity has taken place over the last 12 months on the verge of possible economic changes after the 2015 elections. Exchange control regulations should also be carefully addressed in any M&A transactions.

Deal structure

Do the tax rules favor asset or equity deals?	Neither asset nor equity deals are favored, although share deals typically are preferred because of the possibility to amortize goodwill of the shares acquired (if structured properly). According to new rules that apply as from 2015 (Law 12,973), the allocation of the premium in an acquisition of shares is broken down into two categories as follows: (1) identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed at fair value; and (2) future profitability (goodwill) or negative goodwill. A premium would not be recognized if the transaction is carried out between related parties.
Do the tax rules favor onshore or offshore holding structures?	The acquisition vehicle typically is located onshore to allow the amortization of goodwill. The triggering event for amortization occurs after a domestic merger takes place since there are no tax consolidation rules.
Are there significant restrictions on foreign investment?	Only in certain regulated industries.
Are tax deductions typically available for acquisition financing costs or other acquisition costs?	Interest paid to foreign shareholders is deductible, subject to the thin capitalization and transfer pricing rules.
Can PIK (payment in kind) debt be structured?	The use of PIK debt may trigger complex tax and Brazilian central bank issues that need to be addressed.
Do thin capitalization rules apply?	Interest paid to a related party that is not located in a tax haven jurisdiction or that does not benefit from a preferential tax regime may be deducted on an accruals basis for corporate income tax purposes provided (i) the expenses are necessary for the company's activities; and (ii) both of the following thresholds are met: (a) the related party debt-to-equity ratio does not exceed 2:1 calculated on the proportion of related party debt to direct equity investment made by related parties; and (b) the overall debt-to-equity ratio does not exceed 2:1 based on the proportion of total debt to the total direct equity investment made by related parties. Interest paid to an entity or individual located in a tax haven or that benefits from a preferential tax regime (regardless of whether the parties are related) may be deducted only if the expenses (i) are necessary for the company's activities; and (ii) both of the following thresholds are met: (a) the amount of the Brazilian entity's indebtedness to the tax haven resident does not exceed 30% of the Brazilian entity's net equity; and (b) the Brazilian entity's total indebtedness to all entities located in a tax haven jurisdiction or benefiting from a preferential tax regime does not exceed 30% of its net equity.
Are there minimum capital requirements?	Generally no, but there are exceptions.
Is it possible to increase/decrease capital?	An increase or decrease of capital generally can be undertaken in Brazil. A capital decrease should be implemented according to the rules in the Civil Code. A grace period will be required if there is any opposition by third party creditors.

Post-deal tax management

What is the corporate income tax rate?	34%
Can cash be remitted overseas?	Yes. Brazil has exchange controls but no pre-approval is required.
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On dividends paid to nonresident entities?	No withholding tax is imposed on dividend distributions made to a nonresident that are paid out of profits earned as from January 1, 1996.
	On interest payments made to nonresident entities?	15%. The rate may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty. However, the rate is 25% on payments made to tax haven jurisdictions.

Question	Response
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On royalty payments made to nonresident entities? 15%. The rate may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty. However, the rate is 25% on payments made to tax haven jurisdictions.
Is tax levied on the receipt of foreign-source dividends?	Foreign-source dividends received by a Brazilian entity are nontaxable in Brazil to the extent profits were already taxed on a year-end basis. Profits earned by CFCs and certain foreign affiliates (noncontrolled subsidiaries) of Brazilian entities are included in the base for calculating the corporate income tax (IRPJ) and social contribution on net profits (CSLL) liability of the Brazilian controlling or parent company. A provisional measure (PM 627/2013), converted into law in 2014 (Law 12,973/2014) introduced major changes to the CFC rules under which Brazilian taxpayers will have the option to make an irrevocable election (on a calendar year basis) to consolidate the profits and losses of CFCs until 2017 provided certain requirements are met. The taxation of the profits of noncontrolled entities generally should take place at the time the profits are distributed to the Brazilian entity if the requirements in Law 12,973 are met. Otherwise, the profits of such entities will be taxed when computed on 31 December of each year. A tax credit is available for foreign tax.
Is there a limitation on the use of net operating losses (NOLs) by the successor?	Tax losses may be carried forward indefinitely, but they may be offset only up to 30% of future taxable income. Losses are forfeited in a merger where the loss-making entity is liquidated, and there are restrictions on the use of losses where there has been a change in ownership.

Exit strategy

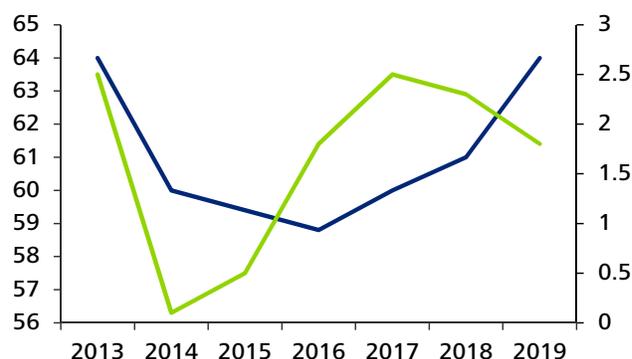

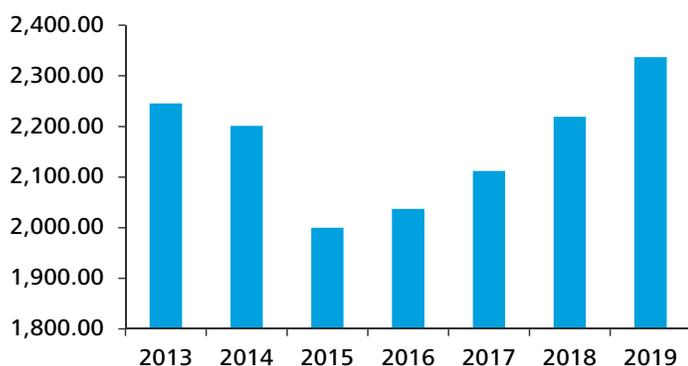

Is tax levied on capital gains at the level of a domestic seller?	Capital gains are taxed as ordinary income.
Is withholding tax levied on the sale or disposition of a company?	Brazilian-source capital gains derived by nonresident entity are subject to withholding tax in Brazil.
Are there specific tax rules governing the exit strategy for investment through an offshore vehicle?	The transfer of shares of a Brazilian company by a nonresident is subject to nonresident capital gains tax.
Are there substantial sales/turnover taxes on exit?	No

Summary

The structuring of deals must be analyzed carefully because of the complexity of Brazil's tax rules and the recent changes in corporate and tax rules with the introduction of IFRS. The enactment of Law 12,973/2014 clarified the rules regarding the tax amortization of goodwill and the law provided relief for many taxpayers because of the uncertainties relating to the ability to recognize a deductible premium on the acquisition of shares. Nevertheless, a detailed assessment is necessary to determine the amount of the tax deductible premium and to ensure compliance with Law 12,973/2014.

Question	Response

Deal structure

Do the tax rules favor asset or equity deals?	Chile's tax rules generally do not favor an asset deal over an equity deal, or vice versa. The following tax issues arise in both types of deals: (1) In an asset deal, goodwill is not amortizable for tax purposes. In an equity deal, goodwill is not amortizable for tax purposes until the disposition of the shares or rights acquired in the Chilean subsidiary. (2) In an equity deal, the acquiring company inherits the historical tax liabilities and contingencies of the target entity. In an asset deal, it is possible that the acquiring company may inherit all of the seller's tax liabilities and contingencies. (3) In an asset deal, gains derived by the seller will be subject to the 22.5% First Category Income Tax (FCIT) and when profits are remitted abroad they will be subject to the Chilean general tax regime (35% additional withholding income tax with the 20% FCIT available as credit). In an equity deal, if certain requirements are met, gains derived by the seller will be subject to the 22.5% FCIT as a single tax; otherwise, the Chilean general tax regime will apply. The single tax regime will not be available after January 1, 2017. (4) VAT may apply in an asset deal, but not in an equity deal. (5) The FCIT gradually will increase to 25% or 27% depending on the tax regime.
Do the tax rules favor onshore or offshore holding structures?	Both structures are commonly used for the acquisition of Chilean assets, with the structure chosen depending on the circumstances. The location of an offshore holding company currently is irrelevant for dividends paid abroad since Chile's tax treaties do not reduce the additional withholding tax rate on dividends. As from January 1, 2017, Chile will have a dual tax regime and under one of the regimes, shareholders in treaty countries may benefit from a lower tax charge on dividends than shareholders in nontreaty countries.
Are there significant restrictions on foreign investment?	No
Are tax deductions typically available for acquisition financing costs or other acquisition costs?	Financing and other acquisition costs may be deducted if the expense deductibility requirements are met.
Can PIK (payment in kind) debt be structured?	Interest on loans generally must be paid in cash.
Do thin capitalization rules apply?	There are no general thin capitalization rules, but to benefit from a 4% withholding tax rate (rather than the standard 35% rate) on interest on loans granted by a foreign bank or foreign financial institution, a 3:1 debt-to-equity ratio requirement must be met if (i) the parties are related; (ii) the loan is secured by third parties other than unrelated third parties receiving market compensation for providing the guarantee; or (iii) the lender is resident in a tax haven or preferential tax regime jurisdiction.
Are there minimum capital requirements?	No
Is it possible to increase/decrease capital?	Although certain legal and administrative requirements must be met, an increase or decrease of the share capital of a Chilean entity is straightforward.

Post-deal tax management

What is the corporate income tax rate?	22.5% in 2015 (24% for 2016 and increasing thereafter to 25% or 27%, depending on the regime).
Can cash be remitted overseas?	Yes
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On dividends paid to nonresident entities? 35%. The corporate tax is creditable against the 35% withholding tax, provided the dividends are paid out of profits that were subject to corporate tax. New rules will apply as from 2017.

Question	Response
On interest payments made to nonresident entities?	4%/35%. The 4% reduced tax rate applies to interest derived from loans granted by a foreign bank or financial institution, provided the lender and borrower are unrelated or if related provided the 3:1 debt to equity ratio is met. The rate is 35% in all other cases. The rates may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	0%/15%/30%. The general rate is 30%. Royalty payments for the use of shrink-wrap software are exempt; a 15% rate applies to royalties paid for copyrights, invention patents, models, utility models, industrial designs and drawings, blueprints or topography of integrated circuits, and new vegetable varieties, as well as payments for the use, enjoyment and exploitation of computer programs. The rate increases to 30% where the parties are related and/or if the beneficiary is resident in a tax haven. The rates may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
On royalty payments made to nonresident entities?
Is tax levied on the receipt of foreign-source dividends?	Offshore dividends are taxable as ordinary income, but a tax credit is available, capped at 32%. The cap is 35% for dividends from treaty countries if the shareholders of the Chilean entity are resident in Chile or in a treaty country.
Is there a limitation on the use of net operating losses (NOLs) by the successor?	No, unless the transaction falls within the scope of the rules that limit the ability to offset NOLs. Carried forward losses of companies that undergo a change in ownership between unrelated parties may be deducted, except in certain circumstances (e.g. where the actual intent of the acquiring company is to obtain the NOLs). In such cases, the acquiring/surviving entity may not use losses of the acquired/merged company incurred before the change in ownership to offset future income.

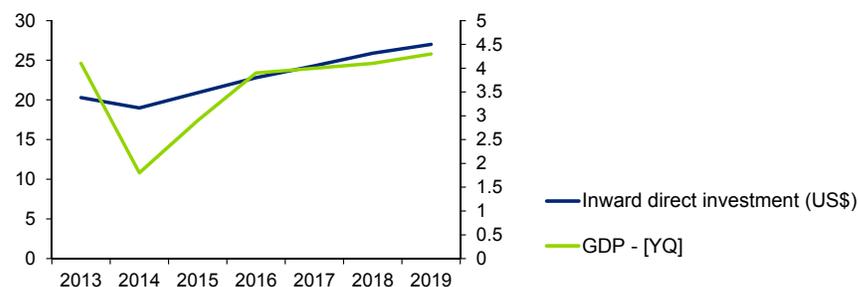

Exit strategy

Is tax levied on capital gains at the level of a domestic seller?	In general, capital gains are subject to the 22.5% (2015 rate) corporate tax and a 35% additional withholding income tax when profits are remitted abroad, against which the 22.5% FCIT may be used as a credit. However, if certain requirements are met, the gains may be subject to the 22.5% FCIT as a single tax.
Is withholding tax levied on the sale or disposition of a company?	Gains derived from the disposal of shares or equity interests in a Chilean entity generally are subject to a 22.5% corporate tax and a 35% additional withholding income tax, against which the 22.5% corporate tax is creditable. However, the 22.5% corporate tax may apply as a single tax if certain requirements are met. Reduced tax rates may be available under applicable tax treaties.
Are there specific tax rules governing the exit strategy for investment through an offshore vehicle?	A 35% additional withholding income tax is levied on gains derived by a nonresident on the disposal of 10% or more of an equity holding in a foreign entity owning qualified Chilean assets if, within the previous 12 months: (i) 20% or more of the fair market value of the holdings disposed of derives from the Chilean assets; or (ii) approximately USD 172 million or more of the fair market value derives from the Chilean assets; or (iii) the foreign company is resident in a tax haven and certain disclosures are not made. Relief from these rules is available for disposals resulting from an intragroup reorganization. The indirect disposal of Chilean entities to Chilean residents also is taxable.
Are there substantial sales/turnover taxes on exit?	No

Summary

Chile has an open economy and remains a global leader in economic freedom. A prudent public finance management has allowed Chile to keep its public debt and budget deficits under control. The rule of law is maintained through an independent judicial system, which provides guarantees to foreign investors that they will receive fair and nondiscriminatory treatment.

Question	Response

Deal structure

Do the tax rules favor asset or equity deals?	Colombia's income tax rules generally do not favor an asset transaction over an equity transaction, or vice versa.
Do the tax rules favor onshore or offshore holding structures?	Both offshore and onshore holding structures used for acquisitions, but offshore structures are subject to restrictions (e.g. transfer pricing rules).
Are there significant restrictions on foreign investment?	Foreign investment must be registered with the central bank, but there are no restrictions.
Are tax deductions typically available for acquisition financing costs or other acquisition costs?	Interest deductions are available, subject to various limitations, including the thin capitalization rules (the debt-to-equity ratio is broadly 3:1) and withholding tax. Deductions often are added to the cost base of the acquired assets or as an expense of the taxable period.
Can PIK (payment in kind) debt be structured?	PIK debt may be structured. Noncash interest generally will be deductible subject to taxation as financial returns, thin capitalization and transfer pricing considerations.
Do thin capitalization rules apply?	Thin capitalization rules limit the deduction of interest on debt that on average exceeds a 3:1 debt-to-equity ratio (the taxpayer's net equity is determined on 31 December of the immediately preceding fiscal year). If the indebtedness does not exceed this ratio, interest may be deducted.
Are there minimum capital requirements?	No.
Is it possible to increase/decrease capital?	The increase or decrease of capital is allowed. The increase of capital triggers a registration tax of 0.7%. In some cases, a decrease of capital must be authorized by the Superintendence of Corporations.

Post-deal tax management

What is the corporate income tax rate?	25%, plus a 9% "income tax for equality" (CREE). A CREE surcharge applies for taxable years 2015, 2016, 2017 and 2018 for taxpayers whose taxable base is equal to or exceeds USD 400,000. The surcharge rates are as follows: 5% for 2015, 6% for 2016, 8% for 2017 and 9% for 2018.
Can cash be remitted overseas?	Yes, provided there is compliance with the foreign exchange rules.
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On dividends paid to nonresident entities? 39%. The rate may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
	On interest payments made to nonresident entities? 14%, if the term of the loan is more than one year, and 33% if the term of the loan is less than a year. The rates may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty. A 5% rate applies to interest on loans for infrastructure projects if the term of the loan is more than eight years.
	On royalty payments made to nonresident entities? The general rate is 39%, but a 31.2% rate applies to software licenses. The rates may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
Is tax levied on the receipt of foreign-source dividends?	Yes, but tax liability is not triggered at the time foreign dividends are received. Foreign dividends will be part of the taxable base of the fiscal period applicable to the company for corporate income tax purposes.
Is there a limitation on the use of net operating losses (NOLs) by the successor?	There are certain requirements, but NOLs generally can be used post-acquisition.

Question	Response
----------	----------

Exit strategy

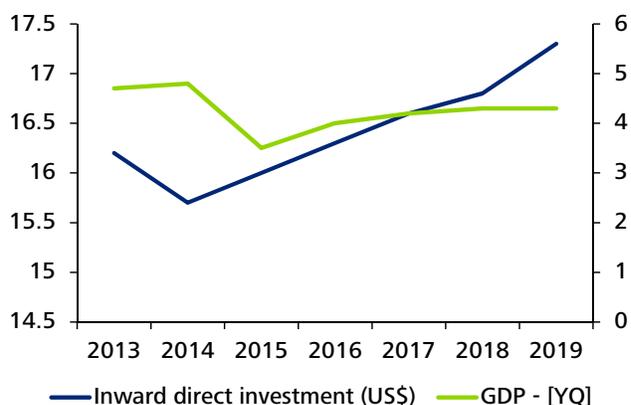

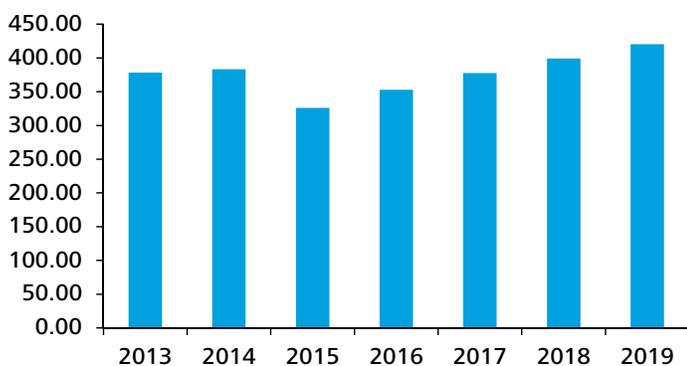

Is tax levied on capital gains at the level of a domestic seller?	Resident companies generally are subject to a capital gains tax of 10%.
Is withholding tax levied on the sale or disposition of a company?	If the acquirer is Colombian resident, a 14% withholding tax is levied. If the sale generates gains for the seller, the gains will be subject to the 25% income tax, plus the new 9% CREE. If the sale concerns assets that have been held for more than two years, the rate is 10%. Filing requirements apply in both cases.
Are there specific tax rules governing the exit strategy for investment through an offshore vehicle?	A nonresident company may be subject to a 10% capital gains tax on the disposal of Colombian assets (tangible and intangible) or a 25% tax, plus the 9% CREE if the assets were owned for less than two years. The indirect sale of assets in Colombia is not subject to taxation in Colombia.
Are there substantial sales/turnover taxes on exit?	No

Summary

Colombia is a growing economy, and in recent years, foreign investors have found the country a good place to invest. As a result of tax rules that became effective in 2013 and 2015, the structuring of deals must be analyzed carefully to determine the tax effects.

Deal structure

Do the tax rules favor asset or equity deals?	Mexican direct tax legislation does not favor one type of deal over the other. However, in asset deals, careful consideration needs to be given to indirect and local taxes, including VAT and local tax on the transfer of immovable property. It generally is easier to structure share deals from the point of view of the tax consequences for the seller, so Mexican M&A transactions typically involve share rather than asset transfers.
Do the tax rules favor onshore or offshore holding structures?	Mexico's tax legislation does not favor onshore or offshore holding structures.
Are there significant restrictions on foreign investment?	Restrictions apply to foreign investment in specific sectors (e.g. air transport, insurance, etc.). Investment in the oil and gas sector is no longer a restricted activity.
Are tax deductions typically available for acquisition financing costs or other acquisition costs?	Acquisition financing costs (including fees and other commission-related expenses) generally are deductible, subject to compliance with certain formalities in the tax law. Pre-transaction expenses may be invoiced to the local business provided certain requirements are met.
Can PIK (payment in kind) debt be structured?	PIK debt structures can be utilized when investing in Mexico. There are no rules allowing for a tax-free contribution of assets to a new entity.
Do thin capitalization rules apply?	The deduction of interest expense is restricted if a 3:1 debt-to-equity ratio is exceeded. It is important to note that the restriction will affect only interest associated with foreign related parties, even though the debt-to-equity ratio calculation takes all interest-bearing debt of a company into account.
Are there minimum capital requirements?	No.
Is it possible to increase/decrease capital?	A capital increase/decrease generally can be implemented from a corporate or tax law perspective. However, specific rules in the tax law prevent the distribution of profits in excess of capital (such profits may be subject to tax, depending on the distributing company's tax attributes).

Post-deal tax management

What is the corporate income tax rate?	30%
Can cash be remitted overseas?	Whether cash generated in a business can be extracted depends on the particular needs and complexity of an investment. Typically, dividends, interest and capital reductions are the most common forms of cash extractions. However, the tax rules applicable to such payments would apply. There are no foreign exchange controls in Mexico. Rules that apply as from 2014 contain restrictions on deductions associated with interest, royalty and technical assistance payments made to nonresidents. In essence, the rules disallow an expense deduction for payments to transparent entities whose owners are not taxed, as well as for expenses that are ignored as an item of taxable income in the hands of the foreign resident.
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	<table border="1"> <tr> <td>On dividends paid to nonresident entities?</td> <td>A 10% dividend withholding tax applies to dividends paid out of generated as from 2014. Dividends paid on the account of profits originating in prior years are not subject to withholding tax.</td> </tr> <tr> <td>On interest payments made to nonresident entities?</td> <td>Rates range from 4.9% to 40%, depending on the recipient, although the may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.</td> </tr> </table>	On dividends paid to nonresident entities? On interest payments made to nonresident entities?	Rates range from 4.9% to 40%, depending on the recipient, although the may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.

Question	Response
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On royalty payments made to nonresident entities? Withholding tax on royalty payments ranges from 5% to 40%, depending on the type of royalty. The rate may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
Is tax levied on the receipt of foreign-source dividends?	Dividends received from abroad are considered taxable income, with a tax credit granted for tax paid abroad. The foreign tax credit calculation was modified as part of the 2013 tax reform, mainly to establish a limit on a country-by-country basis.
Is there a limitation on the use of net operating losses (NOLs) by the successor?	In a merger, the tax losses of the merged company disappear. Losses of the surviving corporation may be deducted only from gains realized from the same activity and provided additional requirements are met.

Exit strategy

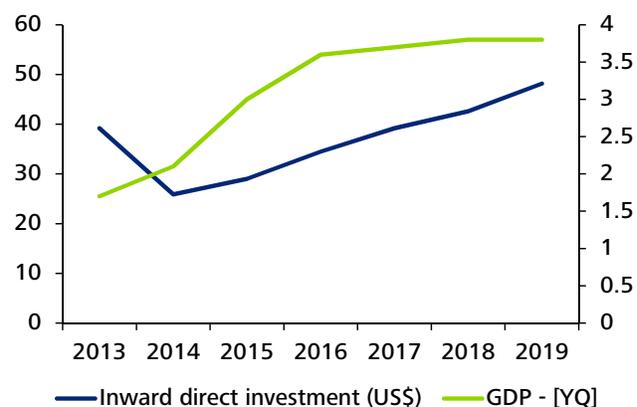

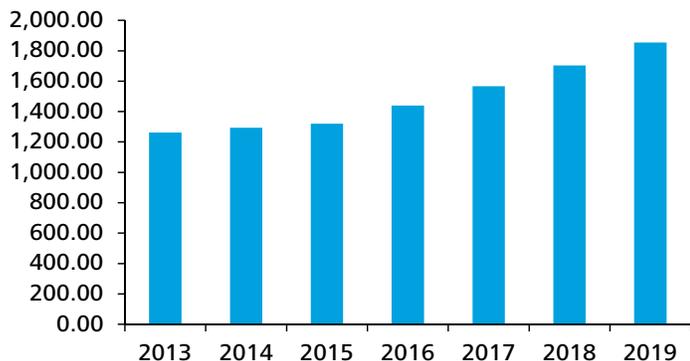

Is tax levied on capital gains at the level of a domestic seller?	No, but any capital gain will be included in its taxable base and will be subject to the normal tax rate.
Is withholding tax levied on the sale or disposition of a company?	Gains derived by a nonresident from the sale of shares of a Mexican company are deemed to be Mexican-source income and are subject to a 35% withholding tax on the gross proceeds. However, if certain requirements are met (such as the appointment of a legal representative in Mexico), the nonresident can elect to pay a 35% tax on the net gains. The rates may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
Are there specific tax rules governing the exit strategy for investment through an offshore vehicle?	Gains from the sale of shares of a Mexican entity are taxable in Mexico. The most relevant consideration when exiting an investment is the residence of the offshore entity.
Are there substantial sales/turnover taxes on exit?	There are no sales or turnover taxes on exit. Only VAT (and local taxes) may apply in the case of an asset transaction.

Summary

Mexico has the most extensive tax treaty network in the Latin America region. Mexico's tax revenue historically is relatively low as a percentage of GDP. Tax laws were reformed for 2014 to increase tax revenue. The government has announced a commitment not to change the existing tax law until the end of the current presidential term in 2018.

Deal structure

Do the tax rules favor asset or equity deals?	Peruvian direct tax legislation does not favor one type of deal over the other. However, in asset deals, careful consideration needs to be given to indirect and local taxes, including VAT and local tax on the transfer of immovable property.
Do the tax rules favor onshore or offshore holding structures?	No, it would depend on the holding structure. It also should be noted that controlled foreign company rules apply as from January 1, 2013 and that an indirect transfer of shares could trigger taxable capital gains.
Are there significant restrictions on foreign investment?	Prior authorization is not required for foreign investment. Nonresidents can acquire the shares of a Peruvian company through the stock exchange or other mechanism. Foreign investors enjoy the same rights and obligations as Peruvian investors but nonresidents may not acquire mines, land, forests, water, fuel and energy sources within 50 kilometers of the Peruvian border.
Are tax deductions typically available for acquisition financing costs or other acquisition costs?	Interest is deductible if there is evidence showing that the loan was used in an acquisition that would increase the generation of taxable income or the maintenance of the source of income. Thin capitalization rules apply to related party borrowings and domestic banks must be used to make the investment.
Can PIK (payment in kind) debt be structured?	Yes
Do thin capitalization rules apply?	Interest paid by a resident taxpayer to an economically related or associated enterprise may not be deducted if a debt-to-equity ratio of 3:1 is exceeded. However, the interest is not recharacterized as a dividend.
Are there minimum capital requirements?	There are no minimum capital requirements for a Peruvian company (except for banks and other financial institutions).
Is it possible to increase/decrease capital?	There are no specific rules restricting the increase or decrease of capital in a Peruvian company. However, under the corporate law, certain conditions must be satisfied to decrease capital and it is possible that a capital decrease may result in a deemed dividend for tax purposes.

Post-deal tax management

What is the corporate income tax rate?	The rate for 2015-2016 is 28%, reducing to 27% for 2017-2018 and thereafter reducing to 26%.
Can cash be remitted overseas?	There are no foreign exchange control regulations. Funds may be remitted freely into and out of the country.
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On dividends paid to nonresident entities? The withholding tax rate on dividends is 6.8% for 2015-2016, increasing to 8% for 2017-2018 and increasing to 9.3% as from 2019. Exceptionally, a 4.1% rate is applicable for dividends corresponding to accumulated results registered as of 2014, regardless of the year in which they are actually distributed.
	On interest payments made to nonresident entities? 4.99%/30%. The 4.99% rate applies to certain cash loans between unrelated parties, and where the interest rate, commissions, costs and bonuses is up to LIBOR+7 for US and European loans; in the case of other sources, the tax authorities will determine the applicable rate based on the documentation provided by the borrower and the technical information reported by the Peruvian Central Reserve Bank. The 30% rate applies to related party loans. The rates may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.

Question	Response
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On royalty payments made to nonresident entities? 30%. The rate may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
Is tax levied on the receipt of foreign-source dividends?	Foreign dividends received by a Peruvian company are taxed at the 30% corporate income tax rate, with a foreign tax credit granted for tax paid overseas.
Is there a limitation on the use of net operating losses (NOLs) by the successor?	The acquirer in a corporate reorganization (merger or spin-off) may not use the losses of the transferor.

Exit strategy

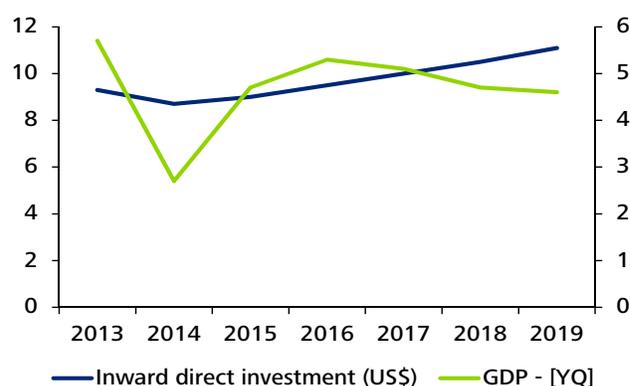

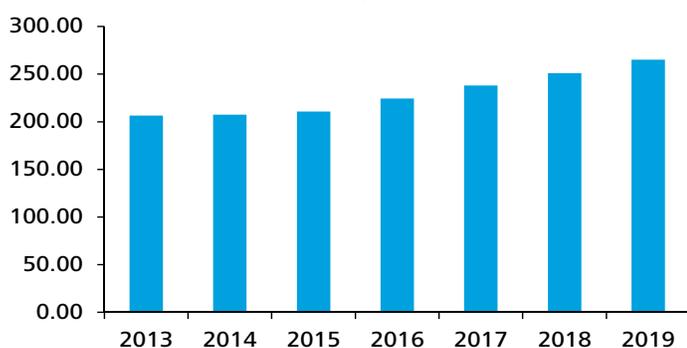

Is tax levied on capital gains at the level of a domestic seller?	Capital gains are taxed as ordinary income.
Is withholding tax levied on the sale or disposition of a company?	Withholding tax would be applicable only if the seller is a nonresident company and the acquirer is a resident company or if the sale is affected through the Lima stock exchange. The acquirer or CAVALI (Peru's Central Securities Depository) would be responsible for paying the withholding tax.
Are there specific tax rules governing the exit strategy for investment through an offshore vehicle?	Capital gains derived from the direct transfer of shares of a Peruvian corporation are taxable income. Additionally, in certain cases, indirect transfers of shares or participating interests representing the equity capital of a Peruvian corporation will be considered Peruvian-source income subject to income tax.
Are there substantial sales/turnover taxes on exit?	No

Summary

The European economic crisis and the good performance of the Peruvian economy have led an increasing number of investors to look to Peru for opportunities. As a result, M&A activity in Peru has continued its upward trend, which combined with the government's efforts to strengthen Peru's fiscal system, should remain solid.

YoY real GDP growth	-3.1%	2014 reported M&A volume	US$571.5M

Question	Response
----------	----------

Deal structure

Do the tax rules favor asset or equity deals?	The tax rules do not favor asset or equity deals.
Do the tax rules favor onshore or offshore holding structures?	A 34% rate applies on dividends regarding transactions with onshore holdings. For offshore holding structures, benefits under Venezuela's tax treaties and possibly its bilateral investment treaties may be available. If not, the domestic rules on onshore holding structures apply.
Are there significant restrictions on foreign investment?	There are restrictions on the holding of shares in certain industries, such as in the hydrocarbons industry, professional services, and Spanish language television, radio and the press. In addition, the exchange control regime in effect since 2003 can be considered a restriction on the acquisition and use of foreign currency.
Are tax deductions typically available for acquisition financing costs or other acquisition costs?	Loans obtained or debt incurred for the production of income, as well as interest on such debts, are deductible for income tax purposes. In general, all costs or expenditure associated with the production of income may be deducted, although interest on foreign debt may not be deducted.
Can PIK (payment in kind) debt be structured?	Yes, and PIK debt is free from withholding tax that typically is levied on cash debt.
Do thin capitalization rules apply?	Yes.
Are there minimum capital requirements?	Yes, and these rules are subject to the policies of the Commercial Registry.
Is it possible to increase/decrease capital?	There generally are no limits on a capital increase, although formalities under commercial law must be complied with (including having up to date financial statements). Capital reductions are limited by law. They cannot take place if a creditor opposes the reduction and claims that a debt is due. In addition, if a capital reduction equals two-thirds of the company's total capital, the company will be considered insolvent.

Post-deal tax management

What is the corporate income tax rate?	34%
Can cash be remitted overseas?	According to the exchange control regime, cash must be exchanged through the Venezuelan central bank. Exchangeable amounts are limited per entity and individual. The Foreign Investment Law provides that only 80% of dividends may be remitted overseas.
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On dividends paid to nonresident entities? 0%/34%. Dividends generally are exempt from income tax. However, if the net income exceeds net taxed income, tax is levied at a rate of 34%. The rate may be reduced under an applicable tax
	On interest payments made to nonresident entities? 4.95%/30.6%. Interest on loans and other credits paid to a nonresident financial institution is subject to a final 4.95% withholding tax. Interest paid to other nonresident legal entities is taxed at the normal corporate income tax rate of 34% on 90% of the gross payment, i.e. 30.6%. The rate may be reduced under an applicable tax

Question	Response
What is the domestic withholding tax rate?	On royalty payments made to nonresident entities? 30.6%. Royalties paid to a nonresident company are subject to tax at a maximum rate of 34% applied to 90% of the gross payment, resulting in an effective rate of 30.6%. The rate may be reduced under an applicable tax.
Is tax levied on the receipt of foreign-source dividends?	Foreign-source dividends are taxed at a 34% rate.
Is there a limitation on the use of net operating losses (NOLs) by the successor?	Yes, provided the entity that had the NOLs subsequently derives gains or if the acquiring entity has gains. NOLs may be offset only against gains derived in Venezuela by a resident company. NOLs may be carried forward for three years, but these losses cannot exceed 25% of the income.

Exit strategy

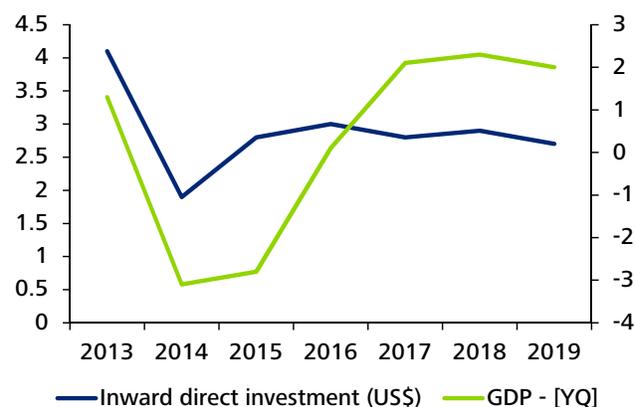

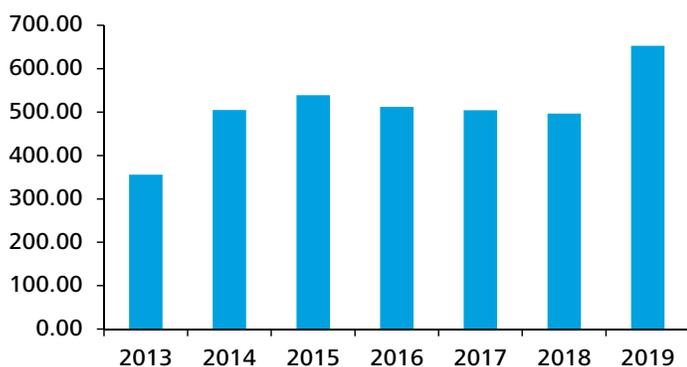

Is tax levied on capital gains at the level of a domestic seller?	Yes 34%, although the rate may be reduced under an applicable tax treaty.
Is withholding tax levied on the sale or disposition of a company?	Yes, 1% for listed companies and 5% for unlisted companies.
Are there specific tax rules governing the exit strategy for investment through an offshore vehicle?	No
Are there substantial sales/turnover taxes on exit?	No

Summary

Assets, equity and gains generally are taxable, but the availability of deductions under domestic law and benefits under Venezuela's tax treaties offer some degree of flexibility. On the other hand, it is important to note that Venezuela's exchange control system must be considered for any structure that involves the movement of capital offshore and onshore.
