

Is it time for a break?

The Global Divestment Survey 2017

Divestment deal activity remains robust despite uncertain market conditions

2/3 of respondents have completed more than one deal in the last 36 months and that level of activity is anticipated to continue

However, uncertainty is making it difficult to complete deals with 54% of respondents stating that uncertainty was the primary reason why deals are proving more difficult to do

For a divestment to succeed in this environment, speed and certainty become crucial. When choosing a buyer, 1/3 said speed and certainty to close was a key determinant.

Getting value from divestments is challenging

28%
of divestments fail

50%
take longer than anticipated

47%
of organisations claim that this fail rate is attributable to being unable to get acceptable value

Data analytics in a divestment process

Respondents are already using analytics in divestiture activity, yet of respondents had a need for more in-depth and raw data sources to support their buy side due diligence

Portfolio assessment in times of uncertainty

53%

of respondents assess their portfolio only when there are performance or strategic issues, and most evaluate solely using financial metrics

Given uncertain and fast moving market conditions, is this the right approach?