

Enhanced project by-law scheme (EPBS) Major projects, major savings

If you're undertaking a project worth more than $10 million, chances are you'll import goods and pay customs duty

Under the EPBS, you could obtain customs duty concessions and save up to 5% of the cost of imported capital equipment.

What's the opportunity?

- You're purchasing goods for your project overseas because no-one makes them in Australia
- You will pay customs duty for goods you import directly, or it will be embedded in the price you pay to local suppliers
- An EPBS duty concession provides all importers of goods (not just the project proponent) with customs duty relief for all goods imported for that project
- Our specialist team can help you prepare all the necessary documentation to meet the requirements of the EPBS concession.

What's involved?

- The two-stage EPBS application process is administered by AusIndustry
- Detailed preparation is required before you begin procurement
- A successful application will eliminate the customs duties on imported components.

Why use Deloitte?

- Our Customs & Global Trade team has the experience and expertise to maximise your chances of a successful EPBS application
- We have strong relationships with AusIndustry
- We provide a complete range of tax services to reduce costs for your project further.
