UK elections

The UK will hold its third national election in four years on Thursday. Hanging in the balance is its exit from the European Union, with the three main parties holding quite different stances:

- The Conservative Party has pledged to “get Brexit done”. If Boris Johnson wins a working majority in Parliament, the Withdrawal Agreement Bill will be ratified and the UK will leave the EU on 31 January 2020.
- The Labour Party has said it will renegotiate the Withdrawal Agreement to include a Custom Union and then hold a further referendum on whether to Leave or Remain.
- The Liberal Democrat Party states it would revoke Article 50 if elected with a majority, and otherwise support a further Peoples Vote.

How can you stay tuned?
