

Preparing for Brexit

Analyse the Customs and VAT impact with our free online questionnaire

The UK will leave the European Union (EU) on 29 March 2019. Uncertainty remains on both whether agreement on the withdrawal terms will be reached, and the details of the future relationship. But we can say with some certainty that, whatever the outcome, Brexit will have a Customs and VAT impact for companies doing business in and/or with the UK.

In order to allow you to obtain some initial insights on the impact that Brexit might have on the Customs and VAT position of your company, Deloitte has created a self-analysis questionnaire.

This self-analysis questionnaire is completely free of charge and provides you with an indication of what the Customs and VAT implications might be for your organisation.

The self-analysis questionnaire should be completed based on factual information and the output will allow you to understand which indirect tax areas may need focus. This questionnaire should not take more than 10 minutes of your time.

If you would be interested in completing this self-analysis questionnaire, please complete this form to request your access to the tool. As the Brexit Impact Tool operates (for confidentiality reasons) in a secure environment, for which Multifactor-Authentication (MFA) is required, we would be grateful if you could include your mobile phone number in the email (to be used strictly for access purposes at your end). The instructions to access the Brexit questionnaire will be sent in a separate e-mail.

A report outlining potential Brexit indirect tax considerations, based on your responses, will be provided afterwards.
