- Prohibition
- Prohibition if used for military purposes or destined to military end-user
- Subject to authorization

Note on exceptions: For selected goods, both the Swiss and the EU regulations provide for certain exceptions from the restrictions or the possibility to apply for special authorizations. In general, this depends on the purpose, the use and/or the user/recipient of the goods and related services. Additionally, "grandfather clauses" may exempt contractual obligations that were concluded before the effective date of the respective regulation from the restrictions. We did not include these exceptions in this overview. Making use of such exceptions or exemptions requires a thorough review of the legal basis, the affected goods and services and the circumstances of the transactions.

Disclaimer:

Please note that this overview is not a comprehensive list of all applicable restrictions under the sanctions regimes and does not reflect the legal wording 1:1. It may only serve as a high-level orientation guide but does not substitute a legal analysis of your exposure.
