

Proactive Cyber Incident Response

Be prepared for the inevitable with our range of proactive CIR services

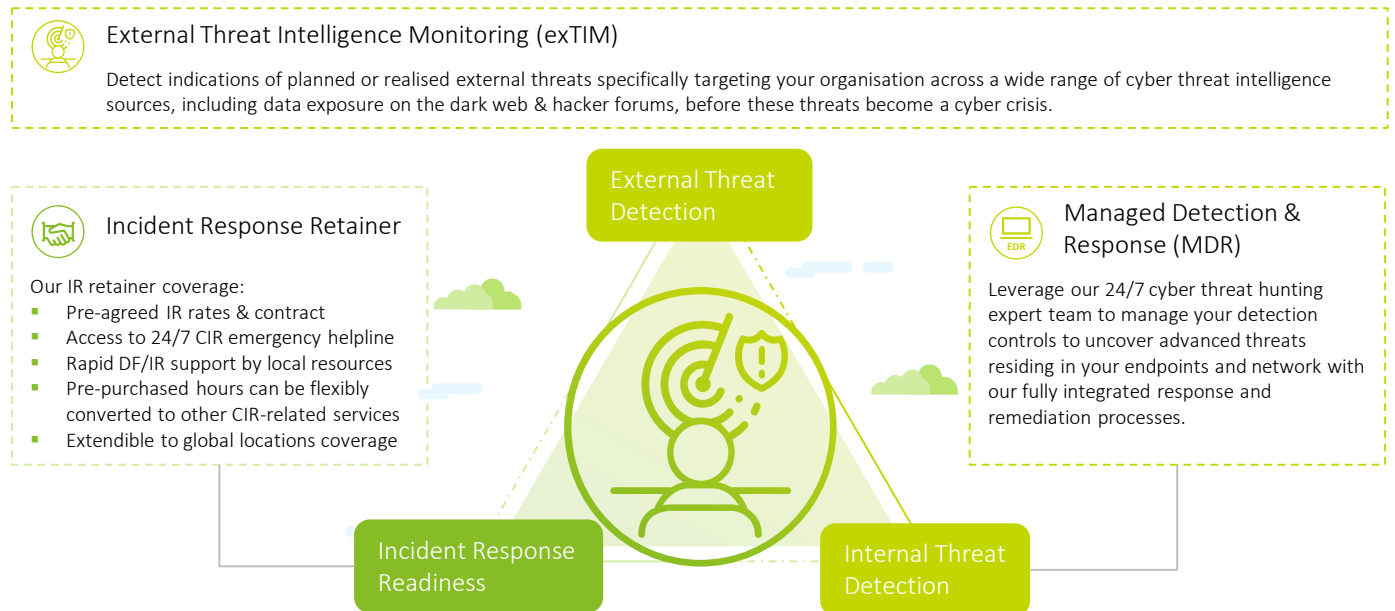

From reactive incident response to being proactive

Cybersecurity is costly, and the cost will continue to escalate due to rigorous regulatory requirements, as well as the need to conduct post-breach investigations and implement business recovery plans. Instead of a traditional reactive approach, employing a proactive cyber incident response strategy can help you discover and react to threats much more efficient and faster, hence reduce business impact and save costs during the incident.

Deloitte’s range of proactive CIR services improves your security posture by shifting your mindset from focusing on defensive measures to incorporating proactive elements along different phases of the incident response lifecycle before an inevitable cyber incident occurs.

Step 2 — Uplifting your strategy, operation and people on cyber incident handling

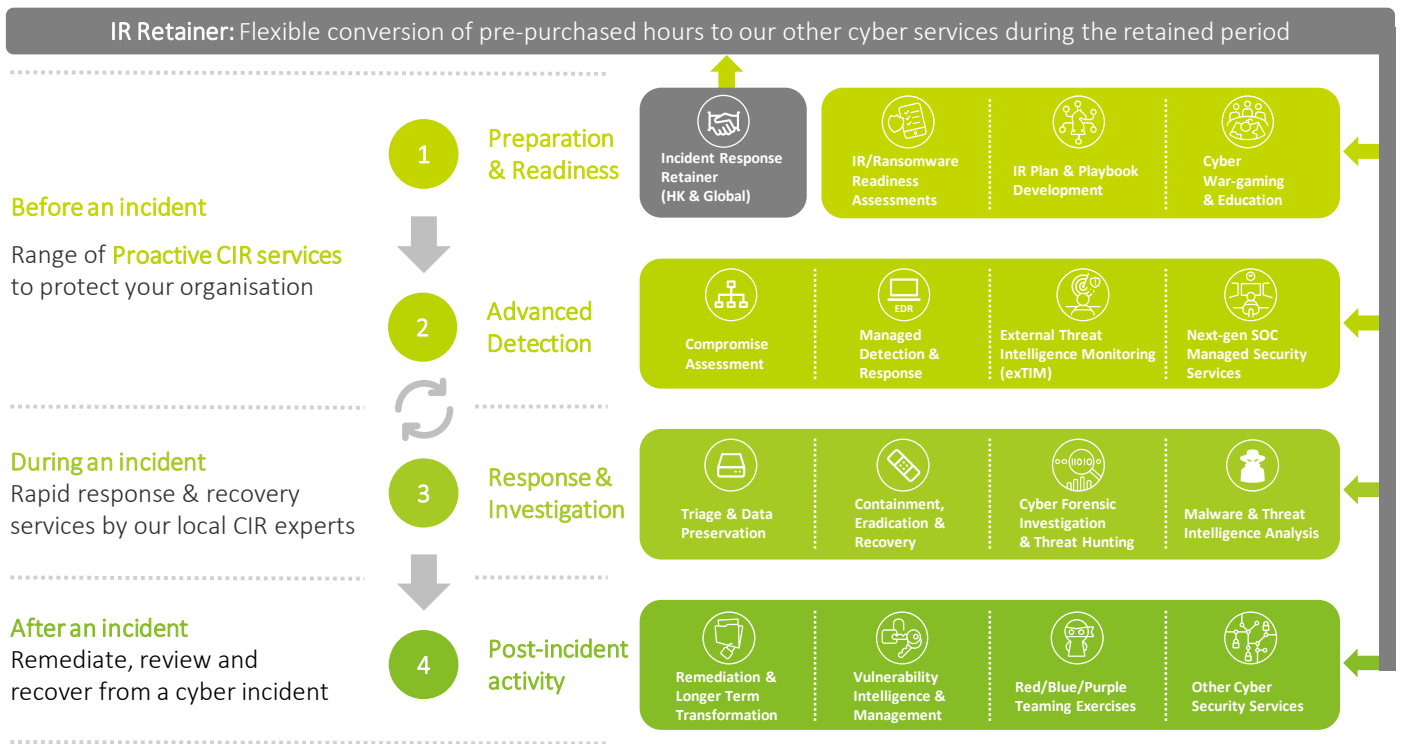

IR Readiness: Building capability is not a one-and-done thing, and will require consistent effort from the entire organisation.
