

Environmental management and compliance services

A statement of capabilities

By managing environmental risk organisations can build a truly sustainable business and realise the financial and reputational benefits that result.

All businesses have an environmental impact posed by their activities. In response, they need to minimise the risk of an environmental incident by implementing precautionary and control measures. To facilitate this, businesses are implementing voluntary environmental management systems such as ISO14001.

Organisations are also operating in an increasingly legislated environment. Development proposals from small construction works to major capital projects are subject to planning conditions and approvals that must be met to avoid financial and reputational damage.

How Deloitte can help

Deloitte provides advisory and compliance services to help you manage environmental risk.

Our Approach

In undertaking our environmental management and compliance services, we adopt a risk based approach focussing on the key issues that matter to your organisation. Our typical approach is shown below.

Deloitte's risk based approach

Case studies

Case studies of some key environmental compliance projects are as follows:

- Major natural gas exploration and production organisation: compliance audit of the conditions of the environmental authority for a Liquefied Natural Gas project
- Electricity distribution and retail organisation: internal audit of contractors compliance with the organisations' internal environmental framework
- City Council: evaluation of the Council's environmental management plans, and monitoring and reporting of performance to address environmental risk
- Development authority: evaluation of environmental management policies, procedures and practices against ISO14001 to identify better practice improvement opportunities.
