Biodiesel originating from Argentina and Indonesia imported in the European Union subject to provisional anti-dumping duties

The European Commission has concluded that low-priced dumped imports from Argentina and Indonesia, which undercut the prices of the Union industry, have had a determining role in the material injury suffered by the Union industry. On 28 May 2013 the European Commission has published a Regulation with provisional anti-dumping measures which entered into force on 29 May 2013. These anti-dumping measures will be applicable for a period of six months.

With this Commission Regulation also the registration of imports of biodiesel originating from Argentina and Indonesia will be discontinued by the Customs authorities.

What does it mean for you?

If your company imports biodiesel in the European Union originating from Argentina or Indonesia, it's possible that an anti-dumping levy is applicable as of 29 May 2013.

What to do?

Check if your company imports fatty-acid mono-alkyl esters and/or paraffinic gasoils obtained from synthesis and/or hydro-treatment, of non-fossil origin, originating from Argentina and Indonesia into the European Union. We advise you to determine if this product falls within the scope of Commission Regulation (EU) No 490/2013 (also added in the 'Related Link' section of this Customs Flash).
