

International Tax Ecuador Highlights 2018

Investment basics:

Currency – US Dollar (USD)

Foreign exchange control – No

Accounting principles/financial statements – Companies must follow International Financial Reporting Standards. Financial statements must be filed annually.

Principal business entities – These are the corporation (SA), limited liability company (Cía. Ltda.) and branch of a foreign company.

Corporate taxation

Residence – A company is resident in Ecuador if it is incorporated there.

Basis – Resident entities are taxed on worldwide income. Nonresidents are subject to tax only on Ecuadorian-source income.

Taxable income – Taxable income comprises gross income derived from business activities. Expenses incurred in deriving taxable income may be deducted, provided they are supported by documentation.

Foreign income taxed in another jurisdiction is not taxed in Ecuador (unless the income is derived from a tax haven or low-tax jurisdiction).

Taxation of dividends – Dividends received by a resident or nonresident corporation from a resident corporation out of profits that have been subject to corporate income tax are exempt, provided the recipient is not resident in a tax haven or low-tax jurisdiction. Dividends paid to a recipient in a tax haven or low-tax jurisdiction are subject to withholding at source.

Capital gains – Capital gains are treated as ordinary income and taxed at the normal corporate rate. If the seller is Ecuadorian, capital gains are part of its global income. If the seller is a nonresident, the profit obtained is taxed at the corporate tax rate, and the Ecuadorian buyer company must act as a “substitute agent.”

Losses – Losses may be carried forward for five years, but may only be offset against 25% of the profits earned in each tax year. The carryback of losses is not permitted.

Rate – As from 1 January 2018, the standard corporate tax rate is 25% (increased from 22%), with the 22% rate continuing to apply to micro and small enterprises and certain exporters (i.e. “habitual exporters,” as defined). An increased rate of 28% applies to companies that are owned by shareholders resident in tax havens or low-tax jurisdictions; the higher rate applies proportionally where the participation level is less than 50% and in full where the participation is 50% or more. The tax rate is reduced to 15% or 18% for inbound tourism companies and companies engaged in the production of goods with a 50%-or-more “national component” that reinvest their profits in Ecuador.

Surtax – No

Alternative minimum tax – The entity must calculate and pay an advance income tax for the following year. Such payment constitutes the minimum income tax payable and cannot be refunded if the entity fails to generate taxable income or the income tax liability is less than the calculated minimum.

Foreign tax credit – If income is subject to tax abroad, it generally is considered exempt in Ecuador. If income is obtained from a tax haven, the income is taxable and the tax paid abroad may be considered as a tax credit.

Participation exemption – See under “Taxation of dividends.”

Holding company regime – No

Incentives – New investments are entitled to a five-year corporate income tax exemption (as well as an exemption from payment of advance tax), subject to compliance with requirements related to the sector in which the investment is undertaken and provided the investment is not undertaken in the cantons of Quito or Guayaquil.

New investments in 10 “basic industries” are tax-exempt for 10 years.

Enterprises set up in special development zones are granted a further 5% reduction in the corporate income tax rate.

Entities set up to develop projects under public-private partnerships are entitled to a 10-year income tax exemption as from the first year in which operating income is generated. Dividends or earnings generated by such entities also are exempt from income tax. An exemption from the special tax on remittances abroad is available, provided certain requirements are met (see below under “Withholding tax,” “Other”).

Withholding tax:

Dividends – Dividends paid to a nonresident generally are not subject to withholding tax, but dividends paid to a recipient in a tax haven or low-tax jurisdiction are subject to a 10% withholding tax. Dividends paid to an individual in Ecuador form part of the individual’s taxable income and are subject to progressive tax rates ranging from 5% to 35%.

Interest – Interest paid on loans obtained from nonresident financial institutions, specialized non-financial entities qualified by the Ecuadorian control authorities and multilateral organizations is not subject to withholding tax, unless the interest rate exceeds the maximum rate set by the central bank. Any excess interest must be subject to withholding tax at a 25% rate (unless the rate is reduced under a tax treaty), or it will not be deductible for the Ecuadorian company.

All interest payments made abroad, other than those mentioned above, are subject to withholding tax at the 25% rate (unless the rate is reduced under a tax treaty), and any excess interest exceeding the maximum rate set by the central bank will be considered nondeductible by the Ecuadorian payer company.

Royalties – Royalties paid to a nonresident are subject to a 25% withholding tax, unless the rate is reduced under a tax treaty. The rate increases to 35% when royalties are paid to a recipient in a tax haven or low-tax jurisdiction.

Technical service fees – Technical service fees paid to a nonresident are subject to a 25% withholding tax, unless the rate is reduced under a tax treaty. The rate increases to 35% where fees are paid to a recipient in a tax haven or low-tax jurisdiction.

Branch remittance tax – No

Other taxes on corporations:

Capital duty – No

Payroll tax – The employer is required to pay 0.5% of payroll to a national training fund, and 0.5% to an education credit program.

Real property tax – Urban property tax is levied annually by the municipalities on the owner of property, at progressive rates ranging from 0.025% to 1%.

Social security – Employers pay social security tax at a rate of 11.15% on the total salary of employees.

Stamp duty – No

Transfer tax – Transfer tax is levied by the municipal governments on the transfer of immovable property, the creation of trusts and certain gifts.

Other – Credit transactions are subject to a 1% tax, calculated on the loan principal. The tax is withheld by the financial institution.

All remittances abroad are subject to a 5% special tax (ISD), charged by the bank transferring the funds, which is then declared to the tax authorities. The tax is deductible for the company transferring the money abroad. Payments made from overseas, whether for goods or services, also are subject to the ISD.

Tax paid on the import of raw materials, capital assets and supplies for production may be used as a tax credit to offset income tax payments in the current financial year, provided certain requirements are met.

A 70% extraordinary receipts tax is levied on companies that have concluded contracts with the Ecuadorian state for the exploration and exploitation of natural resources.

Anti-avoidance rules:

Transfer pricing – The transfer pricing regime is based on the OECD guidelines. Transactions between related parties must be performed in accordance with the arm’s length principle. Documentation rules apply. Taxpayers are required to file a schedule of transactions with related parties where the amount of the transaction exceeds USD 3 million in the fiscal year. If related party transactions exceed USD 15 million in a fiscal year, the taxpayer must file a transfer pricing report.

Thin capitalization – Interest payments on foreign loans granted by a related party are deductible only if the foreign debt does not exceed 300% of the entity’s paid-in capital. Any excess must be considered a nondeductible expense.

Controlled foreign companies – No

Disclosure requirements – No

Other – Ecuador has a general anti-avoidance rule.

Compliance for corporations:

Tax year – Calendar year

Consolidated returns – Consolidated returns are not permitted; each company must file a separate return.

Filing requirements – Companies are required to make two advance payments of corporate income tax (July and September). The amount is calculated using a formula based on specified factors. The final return must be filed between 10-28 April of the year following the tax year.

Penalties – Interest and penalties apply for late filing, failure to file or filing an incorrect return.

Rulings – The tax authorities may respond to taxpayers' questions, but the response is binding only on the taxpayer.

Personal taxation:

Basis – Resident individuals are taxed on their worldwide income; nonresidents are taxed only on Ecuador-source income.

Residence – An individual is deemed to be a resident if he/she is present in Ecuador for more than six months in a year, if his/her principal activities or economic interests are in Ecuador or if his/her close relatives are in Ecuador. A change in tax residence will not become effective for five years if the individual moves from Ecuador to a tax haven or low-tax jurisdiction, unless the individual can demonstrate that he/she was physically present in the new jurisdiction for at least 183 days during the tax year.

Filing status – Married couples or common law spouses living in a common law union must file a combined return if their joint assets exceed 40 times the basic income tax-free allowance. However, if either of the spouses/partners holds assets outside of the conjugal community, returns must be filed separately and must include the individual assets and liabilities, as well as the assets and liabilities that form part of the conjugal community or common law union.

Taxable income – Taxable income includes income from employment, income from a profession or business, capital gains and investment income, such as dividends. Expenses related to the income can be deducted.

Foreign income that has been subject to tax in another jurisdiction is not taxed in Ecuador. For resident individuals, dividends (see under "Withholding tax," above) are deemed to form part of worldwide income (the income tax paid by the distributing company may be credited against the individual's income tax liability).

Capital gains – Capital gains are treated as ordinary income and taxed at the normal rate, and become part of the global income.

Deductions and allowances – Special deductions are permitted up to a maximum amount equivalent to 1.3 times the basic tax-free allowance for individuals (USD 14,651 for 2018) for personal expenses (housing, education, food, health, clothing, art and culture.).

Rates – Rates are progressive from 0% to 35%.

Individuals, as well as professionals, commission agents, craft workers, agents, representatives and other self-employed workers, are required to maintain accounting records when the gross income of the immediately preceding fiscal year (i.e. 2017) exceeds USD 300,000.
