

MEDIA

Television measurement: for better and worse

The measurement of domestic television program viewing should become more accurate in a number of countries because of the introduction of hybrid measurement.

This new methodology integrates TV viewing on PCs, tablets and smartphones into overall viewing numbers, and also includes other data sets, such as set-top box channel selections and video on demand (VOD) server logs.

