

Future of Work Summit
Public Sector – Key Takeaways

Key Takeaways

1. Some of the main public sector human capital trends that have emerged from Deloitte research is the need to:

- Work better across sectors and department
- Utilise people data for effective insights
- Create career experiences for employees

2. Innovation will be critical in the Future of Work, but innovation doesn't "just happen". By developing and instilling innovation tools, processes and capabilities in its people, the public sector can really enable innovation to flourish. See Deloitte GovLab for more information on how to put in place the building blocks to innovate.

Remember: it's easy to draw a bike, when you've been given the shapes.

3. The Future of Work requires future looking workforce planning. This involves:

- linking strategy and work
- profiling the impact of change on the organisation across dimensions
- mapping benefits

However, to start this you need to understand your current workforce.
