

Deloitte.

THE IRISH TIMES

Future of Work Summit

Key takeaways from the Private Sector Hub

Key Takeaways

1. The Future of Work requires future looking workforce planning.

This involves:

- linking strategy and work – planning for more than just people
- profiling the impact on your business – what could we do rather than what should we do
- what are the benefits of a contingent workforce

To embark on this journey you need to establish a baseline of what your current workforce looks like.

2. The contingent workforce is expanding and evolving

- It is no longer just a place for high-end technologists or subject matter experts. It encompasses almost all roles in the organisation from administration to executive level.
- There are mature and experienced organisations other there that can help support and navigate you through establishing what is the best contingent workforce for you

3. Technology is helping organisations engage, work and manage contingent workers.

This includes online portal and marketplaces to connect to contract/contingent staff to resource, screen and interview possible candidates in a more streamlined and trusted manner.

Deloitte.

THE IRISH TIMES

To find out more contact Andrew Kerr, Director
E: ankerr@deloitte.ie