Milestones

A journey is meaningful if it has a goal and milestones. My journey too began with a goal, a goal to excel in whatever I do, but there were no milestones to gauge how far I had come and how far I needed to go. When I joined Deloitte in its Enterprise Risk vertical, I came with a baggage of successes from previous organizations.

Saurabh Prashar

Soon after my induction, I was assigned a big project for a leading client. I started analyzing the client's needs, but failed to understand it from a larger perspective.

I shared my concern with my team and soon everybody was there to help me, as if it was not my problem but theirs. We worked together and made the project a success, with high client satisfaction. This experience with Deloitte made me identify my capabilities, not as a professional or SME (Subject Matter Expert) but as an individual who stands in front of a challenge. It helped me to learn how to discover solutions around me, within me and build opportunities out of challenges.

To summarize, Deloitte gave me three key learning opportunities:

1. Success is a baggage, unlearn and relearn as much as possible.
2. Form trusting relationships with management and peers.
3. Rediscover potential and capitalize on human capital.

These learning opportunities gave me confidence to explore my dream of completing MBA. I applied to all the leading B-Schools in India and got admission in IIM Calcutta and will graduate in March 2017.

In my journey, Deloitte has not only become a milestone but has prepared me to achieve newer ones and excel in anything I do.
