

Corporate treasury

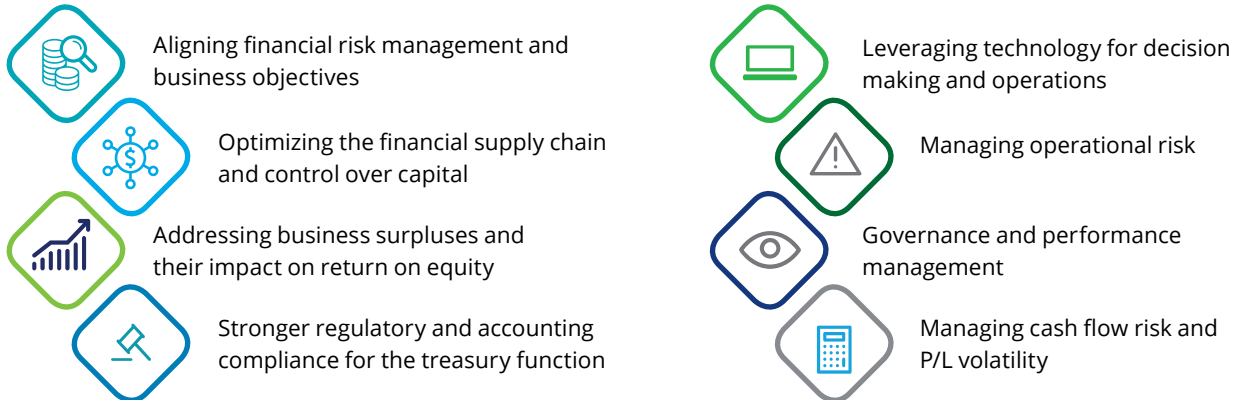

Corporate treasury has evolved into a pure strategic function. A corporate treasurer or a chief financial officer (CFO) requires an understanding of liquidity and financial risk, complexities of the regulatory environment and other external business challenges that may cloud the vision of achieving treasury objectives.

Our Financial Risk Advisory practice comprises of services specifically tailored to support financial institutions in managing risks and discover new opportunities for value-creation. We provide services across multiple domains under treasury management, risk and capital management, quantitative modelling, and technology services.

Knowledge is the treasure, but judgement the treasurer of a wise man.

- William Penn
