

Deloitte Business Travel Advantage

Why now?

In today's fluid, fast paced business environment the amount of cross-border business travel demanded of employees continues to rise—representing challenges for the employee and the employer alike.

Employees need to be “travel ready” at any time. In addition to understanding and managing potential business risks and spend, employers are faced with tax, social security, and immigration compliance, while also managing employment and tax costs at the organizational level.

The Deloitte approach leverages data analytics, supported by logical service engines, to evaluate travel risks before and after it takes place from a tax, social security, immigration, and permanent establishment perspective. Deloitte Business Travel Advantage allows employers to anticipate—and respond to—business and regulatory risk, as well as develop governance structures to manage risk, initiate downstream reporting activities, and to be more proactive in areas such as travel spend.
