

Your energy management, our care

Getting a grip on your energy management and staying in control is important. The government has subsidies and tax exemptions in place for sustainable measures. In a seemingly reinforcing trend the government imposes more and more obligations. Deloitte has developed an integrated approach for you to limit your risks while simultaneously capitalizing on opportunities. It allows you to view all energy measures at a single glance, so you can stay in control. Your company will thus be sure to get maximum leverage from government-funded schemes and avoid risks at the same time.

The Netherlands wants to achieve the climate objectives

The Netherlands is required to achieve the European climate objectives and switch to sustainable energy sources. As the Netherlands is further away from these objectives than other EU countries, it will need to catch up. The government has so far mostly invested in incentives but Deloitte now spots a trend in which the government goes beyond stimulus measures. More stringent implementation of legislation and a stricter observance of the law have now been made policy too. The result will be more measures and obligations and on the back of this a greater risk of penalties or penal sums.

Integrated overview energy measures

Are you curious about whether you comply with the regulations and if you have overlooked any funds?

Our service covers the full range of these regulations and incentives - from a company's obligations, the (energy-related) taxes it pays or can reclaim, through to the administrative obligations (Netherlands Authority for Consumers & Markets, the Gas,
