CE Code of Conduct | Our commitment to quality and integrity

Deloitte's commitment to quality and integrity underlies everything we do – day in and day out – as we seek to make an impact that matters for clients, our people, and our communities.

Our Deloitte CE Code of Conduct – or Code – guides those efforts by clearly articulating the standards to which we all must hold ourselves, wherever we live and work. As we continue building the Deloitte culture, the Code plays an integral part in supporting each and everyone of us as a guide to understanding what we stand for and how we make decisions each day.

It is important that each of us become familiar with the Code. It is our constant guide for serving clients, for working with each other and for the impact we make in our communities.

We remain firmly committed to a culture in which we are comfortable speaking up when something doesn't feel right, in which we respond swiftly and effectively when others raise concerns, and in which we always deliver our very best effort without fail.

The backbone of the Code is the Global Principles of Business Conduct which describes the commitments that Deloitte and its people make to stakeholders in our region and around the world - our clients, our people and society.

It is important to note that the commitments described in the Code are not set out as aspirations. They are the behaviours that our people, clients and other stakeholders can expect from Deloitte today.

Consult, consult, consult

In complying with the standards outlined in the Code, you should ask yourself the following questions to aid in making the right decision about a possible course of action:

- Are my actions illegal or unethical?
- Am I being fair and honest?
- Am I witnessing discriminating behaviour?
- Would I be unwilling or embarrassed to tell my family, friends, or co-workers?
- Would the reputation of Deloitte be harmed if the action was revealed in the newspapers?
- Am I personally uncomfortable about the course of action?
- Could someone's life, health, safety, or reputation be endangered by my action?
- Could the intended action appear inappropriate to a third party?

You don't have to resolve a difficult ethical decision alone. We encourage you to consult with your colleagues, line managers, leaders or our normal reporting channels. In addition, formal ethics reporting channels are available for those who seek a confidential route for consultation.

At Deloitte, we take reports of misconduct seriously, conducting investigations where necessary, and addressing issues appropriately. Retaliation against those who raise ethical concerns in good faith is not tolerated.

With strong leadership support, our Code and CE Ethics Program define the Deloitte approach to building and sustaining a culture of ethics and integrity.

This right, however, does not prevent compliance with the principle of political, religious and philosophical neutrality that Deloitte CE is upholding in the working environment with practitioners, clients and other stakeholders, be it in the office, at client sites, at outside events or during online meetings. As part of this neutrality, outer signs and symbols of a religious, philosophical or political nature are allowed in the working environment provided they are in accordance with our Code of Conduct and are not offensive, discriminatory or divisive. Practitioners should always dress for the occasion and not let their choice of attire get in the way of their professional appearance. Practitioners are prohibited from proselytizing or attempting to impose their religious, philosophical or political beliefs by their words, attire or behavior on others in the working environment.

Practitioners are encouraged to use judgment and common sense, and to consult with their team leaders or with Talent or Ethics representatives for further guidance.
