New rules on consumer information regarding the extension of promotional campaigns/clearance sales

On August 30, 2019, the National Consumer Protection Authority (“ANPC”) has released in public consultation a Draft Order on consumer information requirements applicable to economic operators that continue to place on the market the products that were the subject of promotional campaigns/clearance sales, on the territory of Romania (the “Order”).

The provisions of the Order were issued for implementing the regulations of Government Ordinance no. 99/2000 regarding the marketing of products and market services (“GO 99/2000”) which lay down the general conditions in which economic operators may carry out promotional campaigns/clearance sales.

In this sense, the Order establishes the following aspects:

- (a) The procedure to be followed by the economic operators, as well as the documents that are required to be submitted by the latter in order to obtain ANPC’s approval to continue to place on the market the remaining products following the expiration of the promotional campaigns/clearance sales;
- (b) The conditions in which the products can be sold in order to continue to be placed on the market, including the template label that is required to be applied on each product.

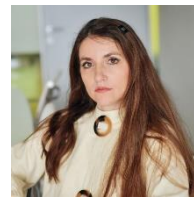

In addition, the Order establishes expressly that for verifying compliance of economic operators with the provisions of the normative act, ANPC may carry out market audits.

Please note that the consultation period for the Order runs until September 12, 2019.
