Deloitte opens an office in Novosibirsk

Moscow, 21 November 2016—Deloitte CIS is pleased to announce the opening of a new office in Novosibirsk, the 19th in its CIS practice. Deloitte CIS has operated on the Russian market for more than 25 years with offices in Moscow, St. Petersburg, Yuzhno-Sakhalinsk, Ufa and Yekaterinburg and currently employs more than two thousand professionals.

Deloitte believes that the opening of the Novosibirsk office will help it to strengthen its relationships with clients, particularly in the forestry and energy and resource industries, located in Siberia and the Far East.

“I am delighted that we are investing in Novosibirsk, which represents an exciting opportunity for us to make an impact that matters. We have long served our local audit clients and recruited a wealth of Talent from universities in the region. We look forward to further supporting the business community and providing clients with the highest quality integrated solutions to meet their growth ambitions”, said Ian Colebourne, Deloitte CIS CEO.”

The new office will be led by Yulia Krasnova. Prior to this, she led the practice of another Big Four firm in the region. She has nearly 15 years of experience in conducting audits and financial reporting for large Russian companies operating in the coal mining, production, construction, trade and telecommunications sectors. Yulia is a graduate of Novosibirsk State University.

“We consider the region to have both intellectual resources and great potential in terms of investment attractiveness. Together with our new team here, we aim to continue creating value for our clients and offer more choice and an alternative source of service in this highly competitive marketplace. We are confident that everything we strive for will have a positive impact on the region’s business community,” Yulia stated.
