Sales of beer and beer-based products to be regulated

It is reported that a regulatory framework is being developed to regulate production and sales of beer and beer-based products, and that a sector-specific draft law will be prepared within this initiative. The following is suggested:

- To lift the ban on the sale of beer at wholesale and retail markets, mobile point of sales, sports venues (except for children and juniors sports facilities);
- To permit selling beer online;
- To extend the sales hours;
- To permit showing beer advertising during live or recorded broadcasts of sports events (other than children's and juniors' tournaments);
- To permit beer advertising outdoors and in shopping malls;
- To re-distribute the powers to regulate beer production and sale between the federal, regional and local authorities.

The text of the concept has not been officially published yet.
