Possible amendments to Russian City-planning Code applicable to self-regulatory organisations (SROs)

The Russian Ministry of Construction, Housing and Utilities prepared a draft of the Federal Law, "On Introducing Amendments to the City-planning Code of the Russian Federation and to Certain Russian Regulations as Regards Improving the Legal Regulation of Self-regulation Issues". The draft law is set to make the following amendments:

- Only general contractors will be obliged to join an SRO. Other contractors will be able to do so on a voluntary basis;
- The contribution to the compensation fund will be determined based on the aggregate size of a company's orders (the proposed minimum fee is RUB 100 thousand, while the maximum is RUB 25 million upon the conclusion of contracts exceeding RUB 10 billion in value);
- To establish a compensation fund to ensure the performance of all contractual obligations, i.e. the self-regulatory organization will be jointly liable for the execution of the obligations of the general contractors;
- To create a national registry of specialists in construction and in engineering surveys, which will include chief engineers and architects for projects.

Possible suspension of new special economic zone (SEZ) creation

The Russian Government was instructed to develop a single strategy for SEZs to ensure the optimization of public funding and the mechanisms for the transfer of such funding to subjects of the Russian Federation. Plans also call for the suspension of the creation of new SEZs until the development of a single approach to their creation, which would also stop the work of ineffective SEZs.
