

Advanced: Managing GST risk and compliance

Date: 17 March 2017

Time: 9am to 5pm

Venue: Singapore Marriott Tang Plaza Hotel

"How simple is GST? Do I need to worry?"

"Excluded transactions? What does that mean for me?"

"GST schemes? Do these apply to my business?"

Do you have similar questions when thinking about your GST obligations?

Taxpayers often fall victim to the misconception that GST is simple - just charge 7%. However, there is much more to GST than meets the eye. There are various concepts that taxpayers should understand to ensure that the GST principles are applied correctly when classifying the GST treatment for supplies made. Yes, it is true, not all supplies need to be standard-rated. There are 25 sections under the GST Act which allow businesses to zero-rate. In addition, there are various GST schemes which have been in place for many years providing taxpayers with favourable outcomes such as suspension of import GST, allowing claims on import GST on goods owned by your overseas principals etc. Of course, all these favourable positions come with requirements that need to be satisfied and that is what this course focuses on. Specifically, we will look at:

- Key GST concepts you need to know before considering GST implications
- The most commonly used zero-rating provisions
- Excluded transaction in the case of a "Transfer of a going concern" – what this means for you
- Agency arrangements: how each of these operate to give your business a competitive edge
- GST schemes: a review of the common schemes used and the requirements to qualify

Why come to our advanced workshop?

This workshop will build on the topics covered in our basic workshop. We will cover in detail the key GST concepts and the corresponding implications including an in depth coverage of commonly used zero-rating provisions and the other less common areas of the GST regime that you may find applicable in your GST operations. These include how a transfer of a going concern would affect your proposed takeovers/ purchases of businesses and also understanding the various GST schemes that provide approved businesses with a competitive edge.
