For the defenders Cyber

Today's world is more complex and interconnected than ever before and, as cyberspace grows, companies are more exposed to the risk of exploitation, fraud and theft. That's where our Cyber team comes in. It's their job to help clients understand and prepare for this exposure and make intelligent decisions about their infrastructure, technology and processes.

Experts in their field, our Cyber specialists are true innovators who work together to keep our clients safe and secure. Join them, and you'll guard our clients not just from current risks, but protect them from potential threats in the future too.

What impact will you make?

We can offer you the chance to work with the best minds in the industry and every opportunity to grow and progress. From day one, you'll be supporting some of the world's biggest companies, working on exciting and innovative projects helping them protect their information and maximise business opportunities. We offer two streams, for technical and non-technical graduates, but whichever stream you join, you'll play a key role in mitigating risk and providing intelligent insights on whether your clients' current processes and technology are up to the job.
