

The LONDON

Office Crane Survey Summer 2017

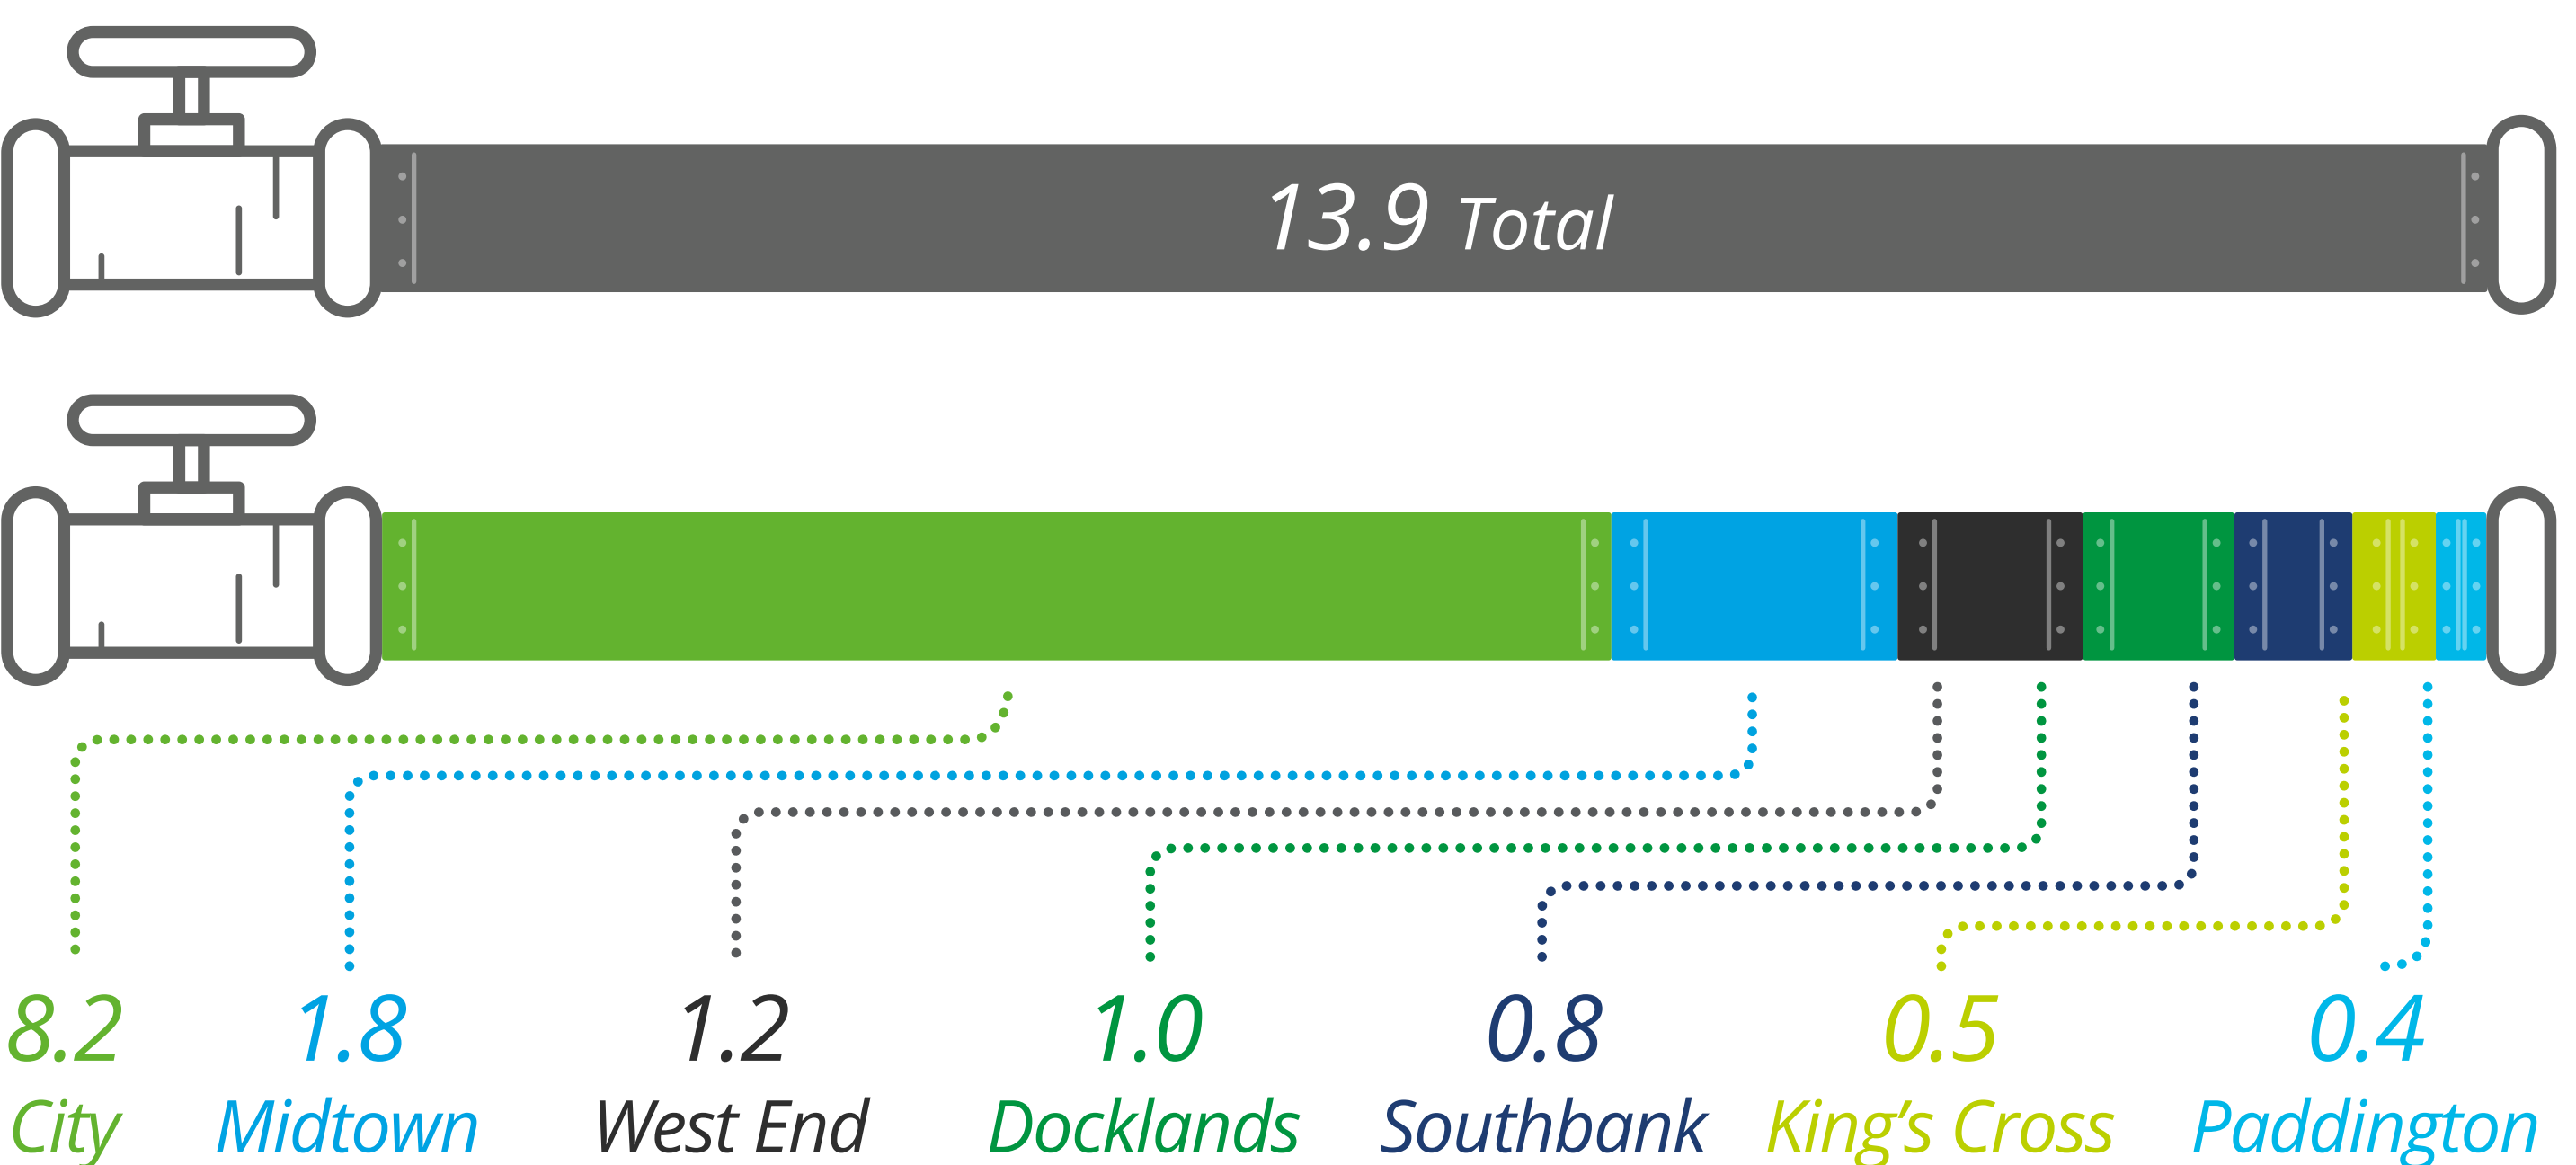

Why measure crane activity?

The Deloitte Real Estate Crane Survey measures office construction activity in Central London. The results present a picture of the health of not just the commercial property market, but of London as a whole.

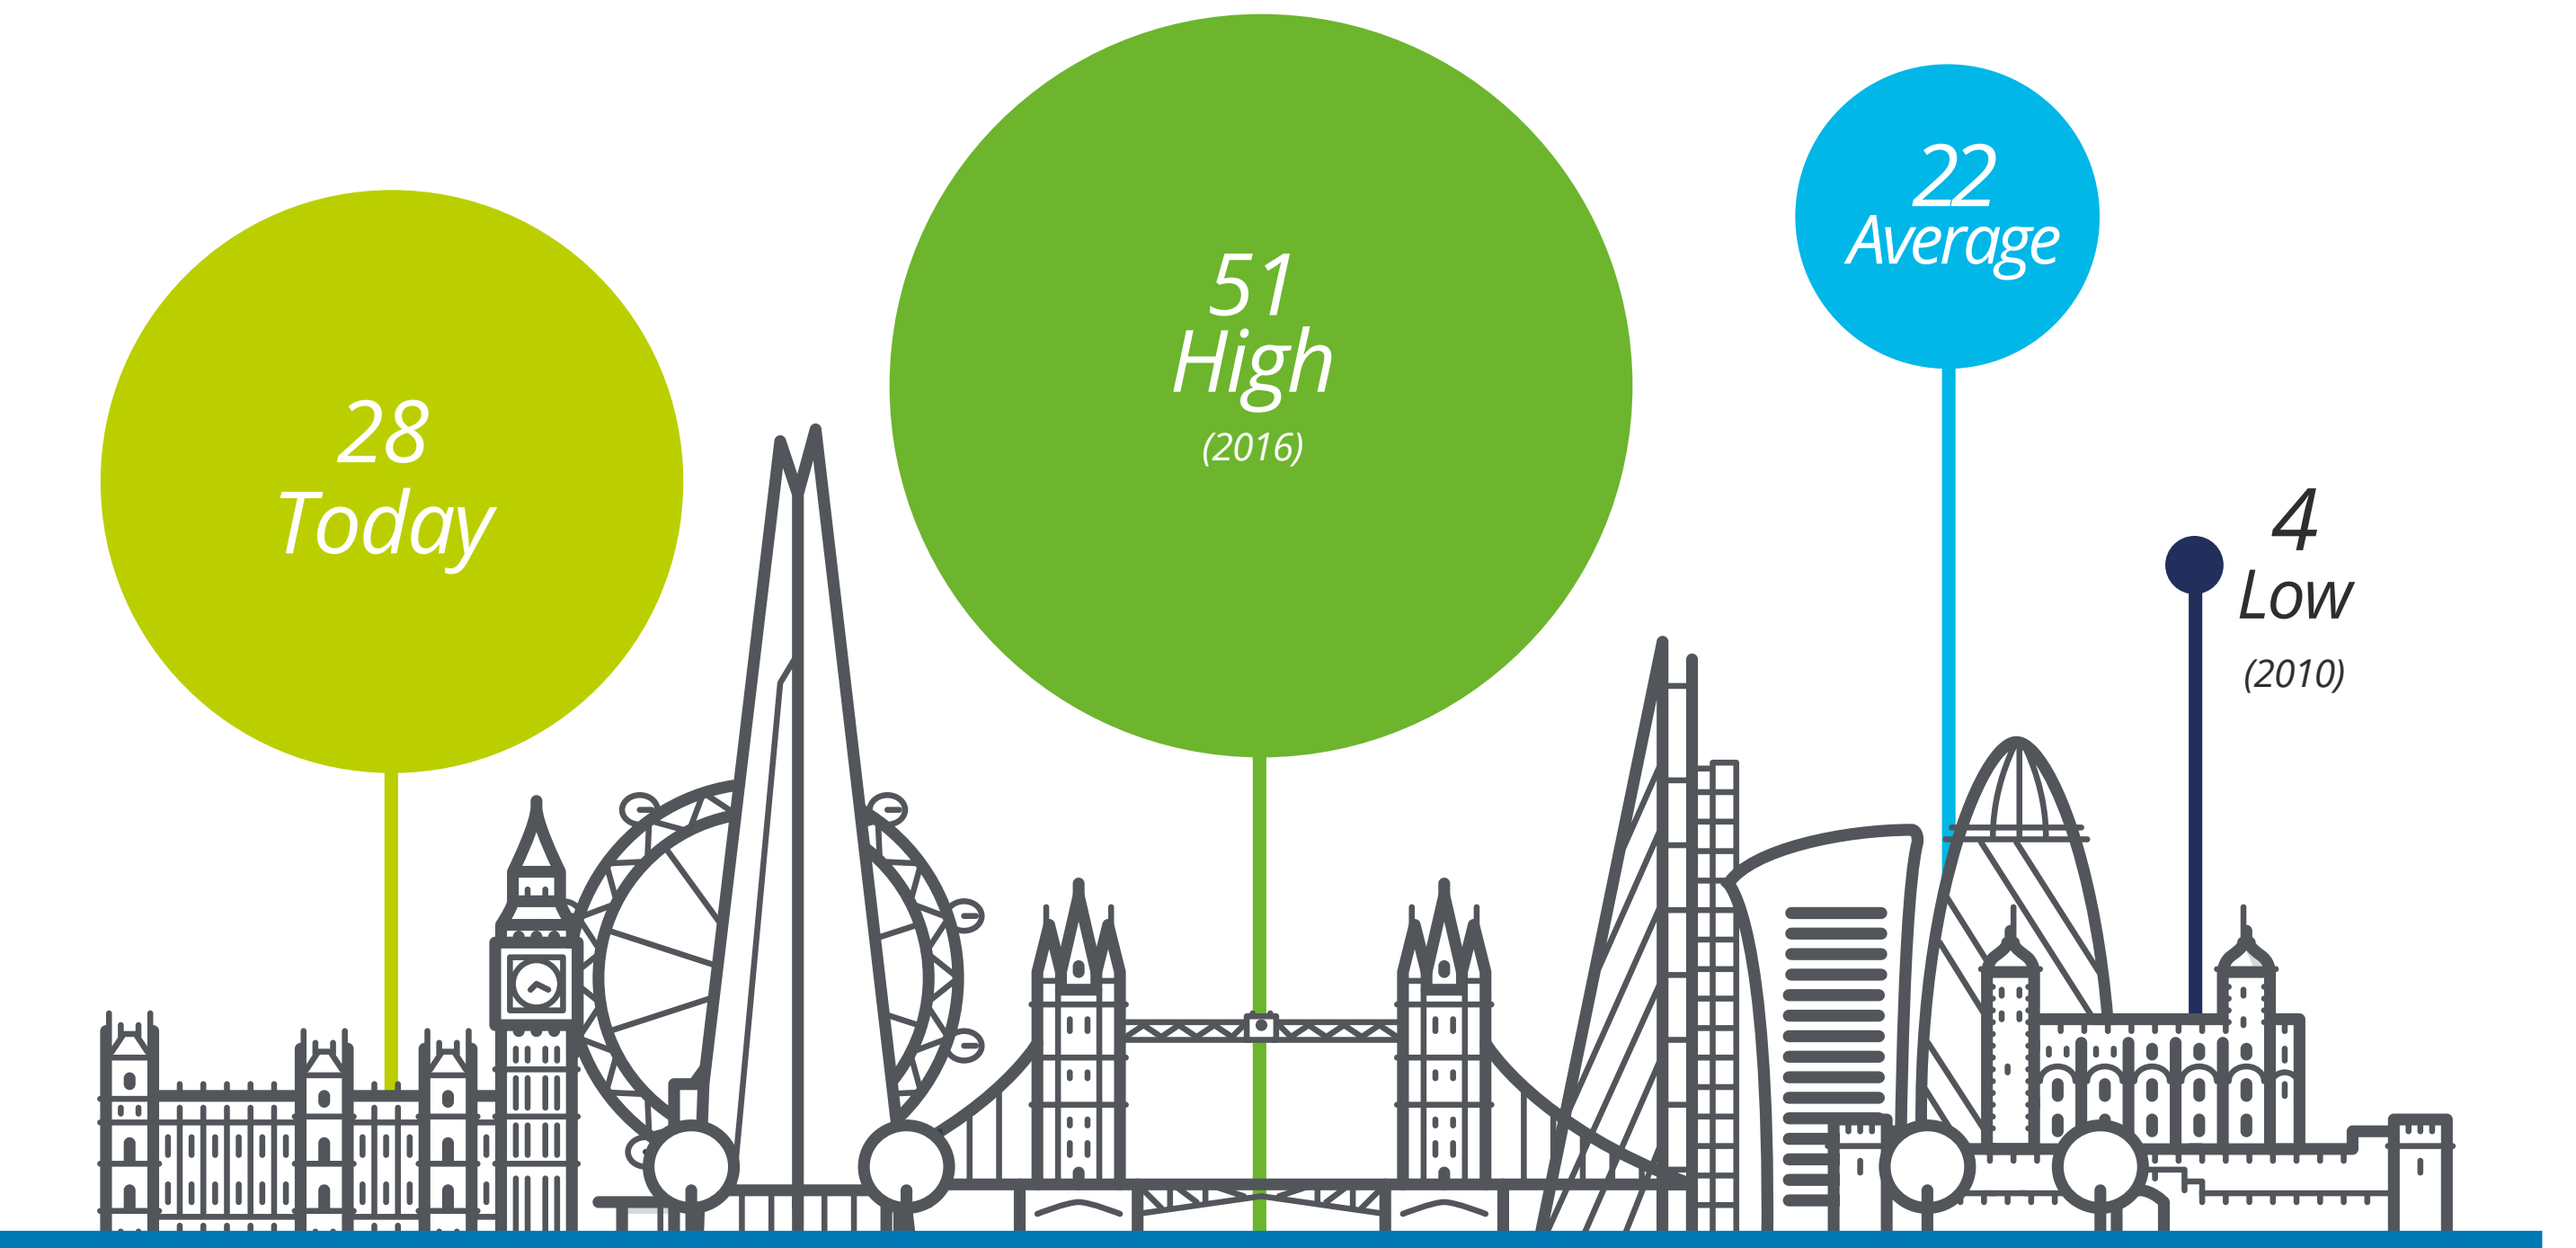

Headline results

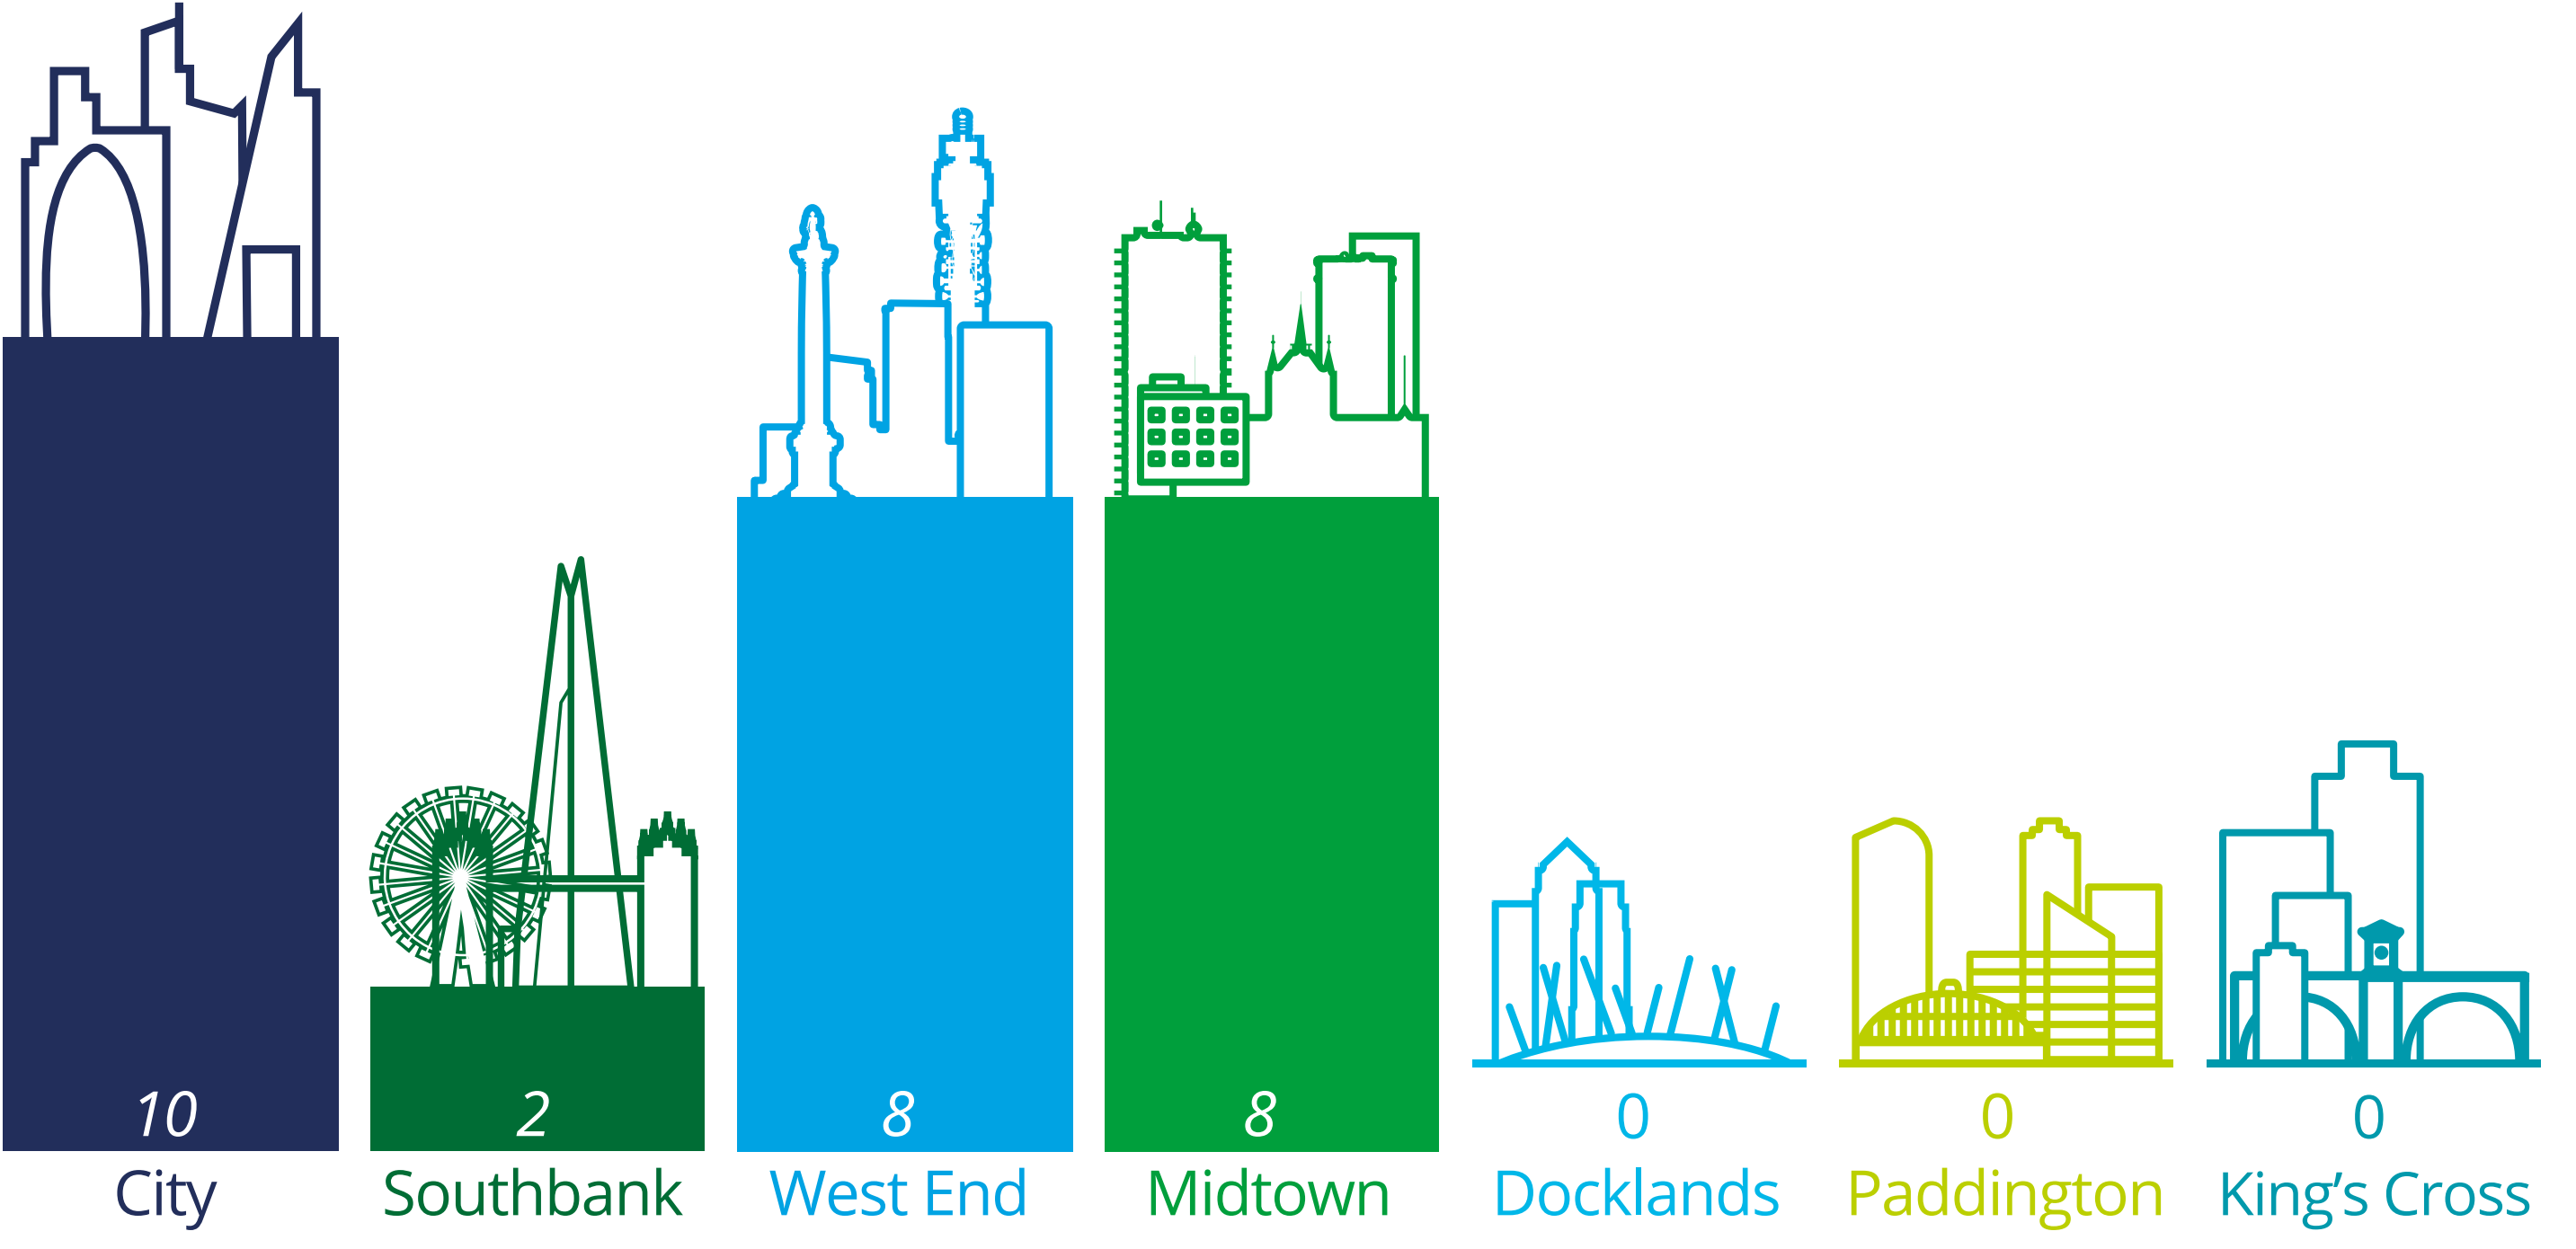

Central London development pipeline million sq ft

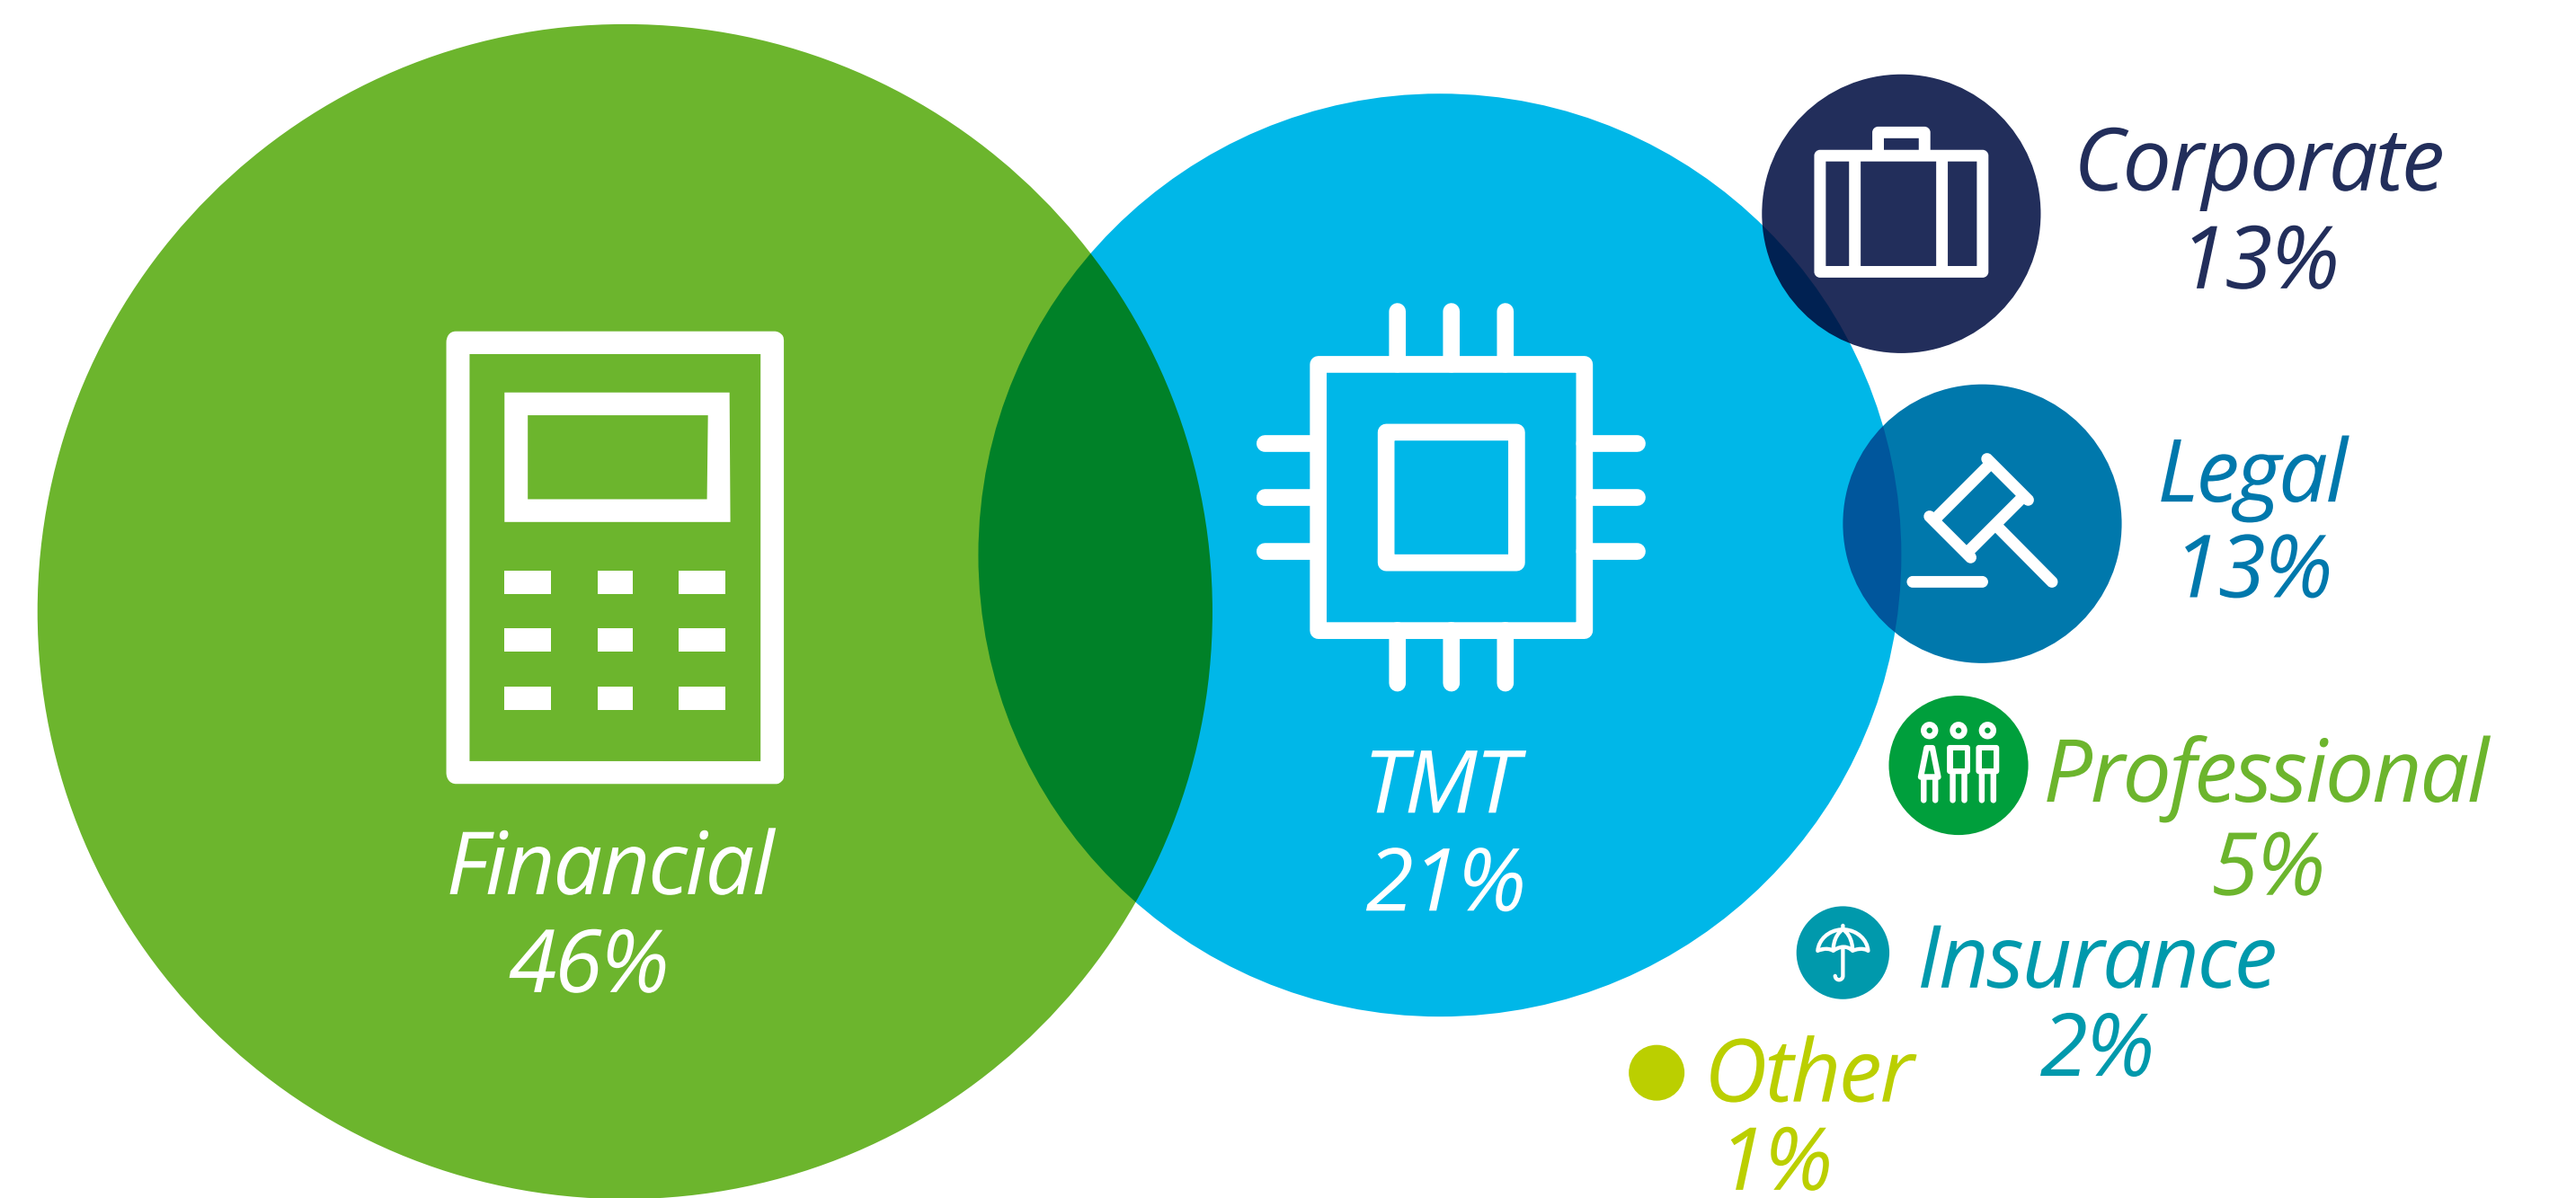

Number of construction starts across central London

New construction starts by location

Percentage of space under construction let by sector

NB: Figures are rounded up

Download the New London App

With the future of London literally at your fingertips, the New London iPad App is a must have for investors, property owners, developers or occupiers, within the UK and internationally. There is simply no other tool in the market with the capability to showcase London's offer in this way and it is set to revolutionise how the industry goes to market. London Office Crane Survey data now added.

To view the New London Development website visit: www.deloitte.co.uk/newlondonapp