

The LONDON

Office Crane Survey Winter 2017

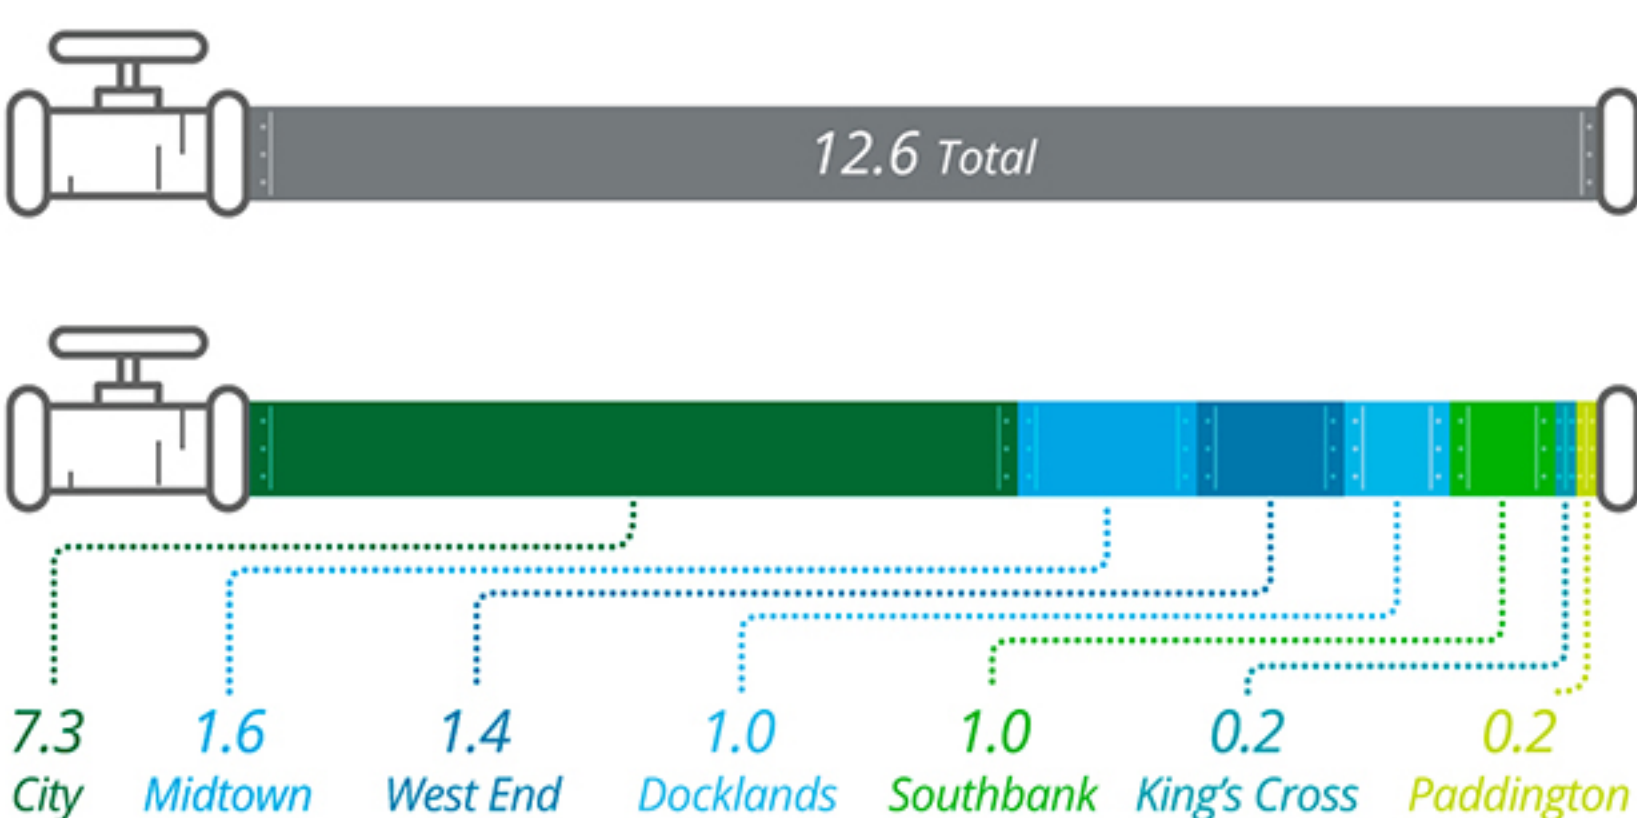

Why measure crane activity?

The Deloitte Real Estate Crane Survey measures office construction activity in Central London. The results present a picture of the health of not just the commercial property market, but of London as a whole.

Headline results

Central London development pipeline million sq ft

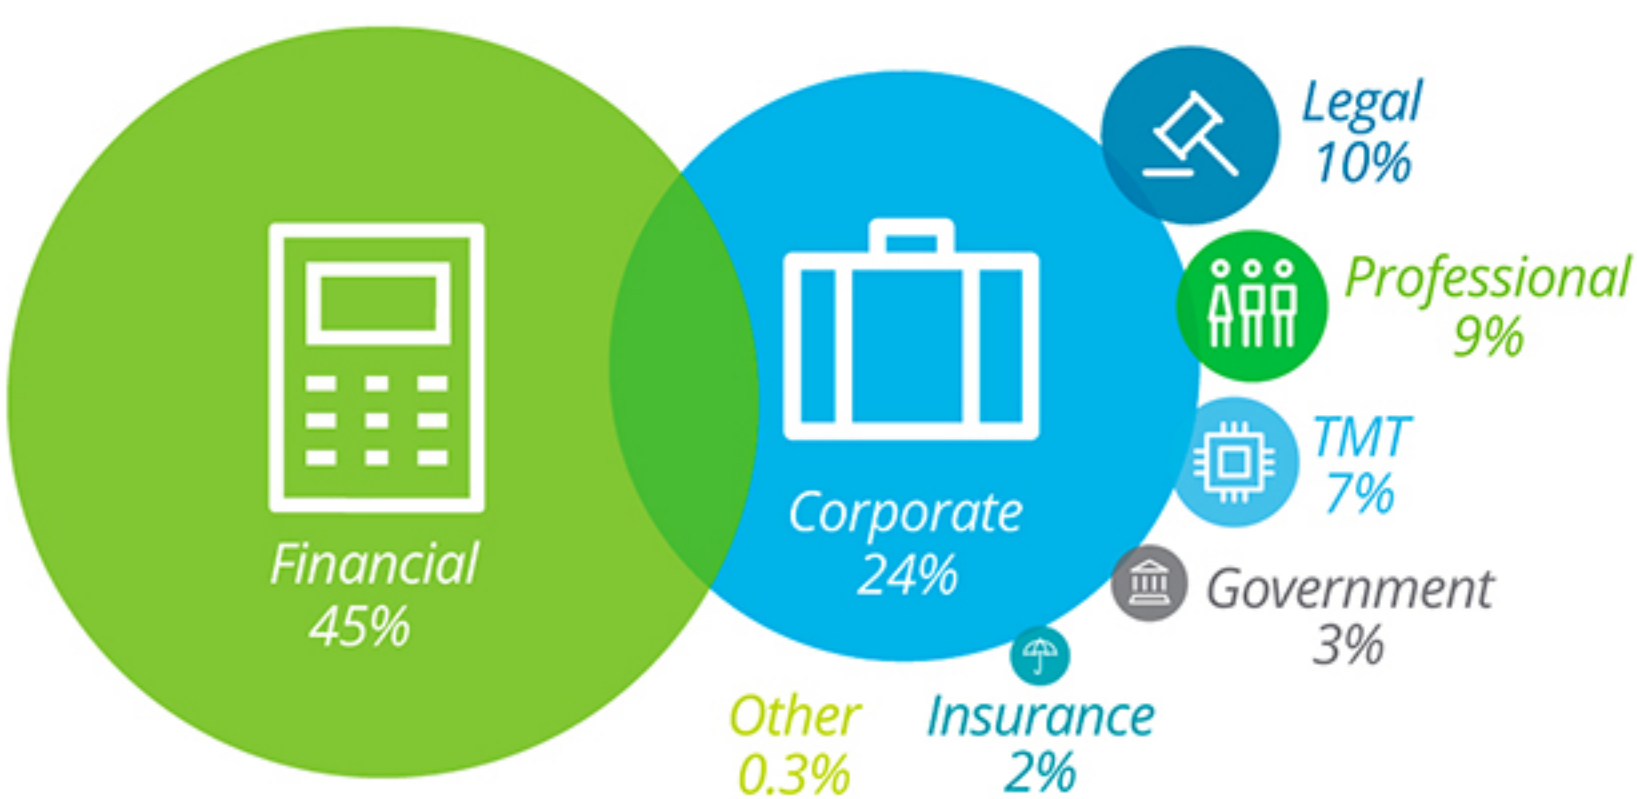

Number of construction starts across central London

New construction starts by location

Percentage of space under construction let by sector

NB: Figures are rounded up