

Why do digital money and the coming evolution of financial services matter?

The tokenization of money and financial services is at an inflection point, creating major market disruption across consumers, corporations, financial services firms, and governments, globally. The transformation of money is on track to fundamentally rewrite how individuals, corporations, and intermediaries interact in commerce. Deloitte's Future of Money Innovation Hub helps organizations explore and respond to the opportunities digital currencies, blockchain technology, and other innovations create in the global financial landscape.

Why Deloitte for your financial innovation?

Deloitte has been serving the digital asset ecosystem for over a decade. Deloitte is a recognized leader in serving corporates, digital asset, blockchain, fintech, and payment companies, from a risk, accounting, audit, tax, and consulting perspective. This uniquely positions us to holistically guide clients through their most pressing blockchain and digital asset financial innovation needs.

Deloitte's Future of Money Innovation Hub is designed to support customer-centric innovation with a focus on the evolution of the future of money. We harness our experience and capabilities to empower clients to experiment with solutions leveraging blockchain and digital asset technologies and engage with financial services firms, fintechs, corporations, academic institutions, law firms, and regulators and policy advisors. The hub facilitates client-prioritized use cases realization through proof of concept development, minimum viable product (MVP) implementation, MVP piloting, and thought leadership development to advance industry dialogue and policy outcomes.
