

Tax information reporting requirements

Vendor payables

Issues and concerns

- Tax regulations require companies to properly identify payments so that appropriate withholding and reporting may be applied.
 - The IRS has made significant investments in the area of enforcement and has increased penalties for failure to comply
 - Recent transitional relief issued with respect to FATCA specifically excludes relief for non-compliance with the rules governing withholding and reporting in the vendor payable area.
- Organizations must have the ability to integrate tax technology, tax technical and operational challenges into pragmatic solutions.
- Processes and procedures must cover the collection, validation, and maintenance of tax documentation from vendors and classification of payments which may have an impact on downstream payment processing systems
 - This may include collecting and maintaining classifications and data within an ERP system that interfaces with a third-party tax reporting tool for printing, mailing, and electronic filing with multiple tax reporting authorities.

How may we help?

- Gap analyses to review accounts payable process and procedures
- Training to accounts payable and other key departments for ongoing compliance
- Revise and update vendor onboarding procedures
- IT systems enhancements
- Vendor remediation
- Tax technical support
- Outsourcing of documentation validation and/or reporting
- Tax examination support
- Development of an operating model that leads to compliance, manages risk, and the desired vendor experience

Financial exposures and relationship impacts may result from missed withholding and reporting obligations; it is important to understand these complex rules
