Morgan Williams, incoming Booth student, describes his experience at Deloitte University as a participant in the Deloitte Consulting Immersion Program \(DCIP\)

We'd like to introduce Morgan Williams, DCIP graduate and Class of 2015 Booth MBA student! Morgan, tell us a little bit about yourself...

I graduated with degrees in finance and English from Brigham Young University, and for the past four years I have been working in risk management at Goldman Sachs. I have also served in the U.S. Navy Reserve, and prior to my recent move to Chicago, I served on the board of a local non-profit that teaches career preparation skills to underprivileged women. I am excited to begin the MBA program at Chicago Booth in the fall, and I have been enjoying sailing, rowing and biking around the city since moving to Chicago.

The DCIP is a unique opportunity for incoming MBA students to get an overview of the consulting industry and a head start on internship recruiting preparation. How did you hear about the program, why did you apply and what was the interview process like?

I learned about the program from a friend who had participated in DCIP the prior year. He enjoyed his experience and encouraged me to apply. I applied so that I could learn more about Deloitte, increase my understanding about the consulting industry and interview process, and create connections with the practitioners and other participants. After submitting a formal written application, I participated in three rounds of telephone interviews. At each stage, I became more excited about the program.

DCIP participants attend a 3-day summit at our Deloitte University. What did you experience in those 3 days, did you find it beneficial, and would you do it all over again?

DCIP was extremely beneficial, and I would definitely do it again and encourage others to participate as well. During the program, I participated in a variety of workshops, meetings, and networking events with multiple practitioners and pre-MBA students from across the country. We learned about various leadership styles, case project exercises, and effective teamwork skills. I was particularly impressed by how friendly and helpful each practitioner was for us. I also enjoyed getting an "inside view" and learning more about the Strategy and Operations consulting practice at Deloitte. The amenities at Deloitte University were fantastic and provided a special setting for the DCIP.
