

Meet Jennifer Deutsch,
Partner, Deloitte Tax LLP, and Military Spouse

Jennifer Deutsch's journey to partner has not been a straight line. She graduated from the University of Michigan. Moved with her Marine husband to San Diego. Graduated in 1996 from San Diego State University with a Masters in Accountancy. Then took a position with Deloitte Tax LLP.

She says of Deloitte Tax LLP, "I loved the people; I loved everything about it."

She would also come to love that the Deloitte network has an international presence and entrepreneurial culture, because she proceeded to advance her career even as her family moved "at the discretion of the U.S. government." They've lived in San Diego, Washington D.C., Emerald Isle, NC, Orange County, CA, and even Frankfurt, Germany, all coinciding with her husband's military assignments. For most of that time, Jennifer held positions across the Deloitte network, though she did leave for a period to take a position in course development and instruction for the Becker Professional Review.

Fittingly, Jennifer understands that professionals go through different career cycles and that it's important to own your career. "I still see a lot of folks who narrowly look at their skill sets as opposed to seeing how they might be applicable in different situations." Through the twists and turns of her career, her own mentors have often helped her get past similar hurdles, showing her that she's capable of even more than she thinks. She works to do the same for others.

"The incredible support that I received from colleagues when I underwent my first relocation inspired me to start a program to support others. Deloitte's culture enabled our team to build this program from the ground-up, and we're so proud that Deloitte provides a workplace that enables military spouse ambitions, while honoring military commitments."

How Deloitte Addresses Military Spouse Underemployment

According to the 2014 Military Spouse Employment Survey conducted by the Institute for Veterans and Military Families and the Military Officers Association of America, 90% of military spouses are underemployed.

To address this, Deloitte's inclusive culture, agile workforce, and demonstrated support for the veteran community served as a platform for the Military Spouse Initiative (MSI) to emerge. From the ground-up, a group of Deloitte military spouses brainstormed and outlined a four-tiered approach to best support military spouses: Military Spouse Ambassador Program, Talent Support, Professional Development, and Recruiting.

Deloitte's MSI aims to provide a workplace that attracts, supports, and retains high-talent military spouses. Military Spouses at Deloitte are represented in 32 major offices, 21 different states, and across all five Functional Specific Subsidiaries at Deloitte: Tax, Audit, Financial Advisory, Consulting, and Enabling Areas.

Deloitte is leading the way in offering support for its military spouses; through the Military Spouse Initiative, military spouses can lean on each other and utilize Deloitte resources to not just have a job, but have a career.

“One of the things that differentiates Deloitte is our commitment to supporting our people through the full lifecycle of their careers. And for our military spouses, this means providing flexibility, transition support, and career development regardless of where orders may take our Deloitte military spouses. Our military spouses bring invaluable perspectives, experiences, and skills which is why it's so important to provide a support system when life is unpredictable.”
