

Tenor of worldwide geopolitics creating concerns

CFOs have faced a barrage of domestic and global developments that have understandably led to decidedly mixed assessments this quarter. Against this tumultuous backdrop, CFOs' sentiment and expectations seem reasonably optimistic this quarter—despite expectations for sales and earnings that are still near their survey lows.

Assessments restrained for North American economy²

46% of surveyed CFOs describe North American conditions as good, and 37% expect better conditions in a year

4% describe Europe's economy as good, and just 10% see it improving in a year

10% regard China's economy as good, and 14% expect improvement in a year

Sales and earnings expectations relatively weak; Capital spending and domestic hiring better³

Revenue growth expectations up from 4.0% last quarter ↑ 4.2%

Earnings growth expectations down from last quarter's 7.7% ↓ 6.1%

Capital spending growth expectations up from last quarter's 5.4% ↑ 5.6%

Domestic hiring growth expectations up significantly from last quarter's 1.1% ↑ 2.3%

Continuing CFO optimism regarding their companies' prospects⁴

Net optimism fell to +19.7% from last quarter's +30.0%

35.3% of surveyed CFOs express rising optimism, down from 49% in 2Q16

15.6% of surveyed CFOs now cite declining optimism, falling from last quarter's 19%
