Enhance the experience for all employees with a digital workplace

Keeping employees engaged and productive is essential for any organization's success, especially during a merger or acquisition (M&A), which can create significant disruption. Leadership is often focused on external stakeholders, business lines may have competing priorities, information is constantly evolving, and technology platforms may be disjointed.

ConnectMe, our digital workplace product, can automate manual and laborious processes during a transaction, such as the distribution and collection of time-sensitive materials, which can reduce risk and costs, and accelerate deal timelines. It can also help ease the transition and enhance employees' experience by connecting employees to what they need – whether offer letters and tax forms, or timely communications on the deal and what's required of them – accessible from anywhere, at any time. This can lead to improved culture and engagement and, ultimately, positive outcomes and deal value.

Corporations and private equity firms foresee an acceleration of M&A activity in 2018—both in the number of deals and the size of those transactions, according to Deloitte's M&A Trends 2018 report.

ConnectMe can streamline HR for M&A transactions

- Mobile enabled (Mobile icon) Enables employees to access personally-curated information specific to the change—from details on the transaction, to their offer letter, benefits information, and onboarding tools for new roles.
- Improved communications (Thumbs up icon) Automates and improves communications – whether targeting specific employee groups or using preferred delivery mechanisms – making it easier to connect with all employees during this period of transition.
- Streamlined processes (Upward arrow icon) Clarifies the many tasks during a transaction for employees and enables them to submit information electronically, while also making it easy for HR to track employees' progress.
- Dynamic reporting (Line graph icon) Real-time analytics help leadership track what's important to employees, allowing them to adjust the communications and engagement strategy as needed.
