Prefering legal professionals to be more effective business partners

Complex organizations expect a lot from their leaders. More and more in-house attorneys are expected to play a part in both the formulation of strategic business decisions as well as providing the requisite legal guidance. That means knowledge of the law is only part of the arsenal your team members need if they're going to contribute and advance. The Chief Legal Officer ("CLO") Program’s Learning Center curriculum is there to bring your team up to speed on financial acumen, interpersonal skills, and executive perspectives on growth and risk. When members of the legal team understand the way business works, they'll be more comfortable engaging in deeper collaborations with key stakeholders and moving the company's interests forward.

Team-building is more important than ever

Business is global, and so are the legal functions that support it. Your law department may be spread across the globe—or its responsibilities may be. That puts a premium on the communication and interaction skills that can cement working relationships, and our Learning Center creates an unparalleled opportunity for your team to build them. Our session offers a unique environment where people come together to learn and discuss important topics.

Knowledge and ability: The CLO Learning Center's curriculum is a learning program with three main focal points: business acumen, technology savvy, and leadership excellence:

- Our business acumen courses target areas of financial acumen and operational knowledge that your team needs in order to bring an effective voice to business decisions.

- Our technology courses provide insights into ways technology can help you and your teams execute on strategy.

- Our leadership courses are designed to build high-performing teams by enhancing participants’ relationship and communication skills.

Your needs, your agenda

The program is made up of distinct courses that address different competency areas. Each team that experiences the program can decide which topics and courses are most beneficial for its legal department, and Deloitte will tailor the experience to match.

Convenience for today—professional credit for tomorrow

Each module takes one to two hours at a location that is convenient to you – either at your office, at a nearby Deloitte office, or virtually. Our hand-picked facilitators and leadership coaches deliver a powerful learning experience based on the specific priorities and requirements that you bring to the table. In addition, participants may be eligible to receive Continuing Legal Education (CLE) credits. When you participate in a learning session, you’re investing in the career development of each team member who attends. You’re also developing your entire legal organization to have more strategic value and impact to the business it’s helping to lead.
