Physician Leadership Academy

Facilitating your journey to health care enterprise leader

Rising costs and increasing demands for quality are accelerating the movement toward value-based health care—today’s complex, dynamic environment requires new skills. Physician leaders are taking on new, transformative roles.

A leadership program to match the times
Deloitte Consulting, the University of Pennsylvania’s Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics, and Wharton Executive Education joined forces to create the Physician Leadership Academy. This unique program is built for physician leaders evolving into enterprise leaders.

Program objectives:
Physician Leadership Academy equips participants with the necessary leadership and management skills that traditional medical and business education do not. Through three experiential in-person learning sessions, you’ll gain a clear understanding of your own leadership style, strengths, and development areas. You will experience individual feedback, coaching, mentoring, and peer support, along with guidance from a Board of Advisors comprising expert industry leaders. You will gain:

• The skills necessary to lead an enterprise through the evolving health care ecosystem and drive a culture of patient centricity
• In-depth expertise on how to design and implement “next level” business strategies and lead your team through change and growth
• An expanded network of accomplished peers from across the country
• Progress on your own business challenge, enabling you to apply learnings and make an impact immediately

Who should attend:
Physician Leadership Academy is targeted to practicing physicians who:

• Seek the opportunity to transform leadership capabilities through innovative approaches
• Have taken on increasing levels of responsibility in their careers
• Aspire to be enterprise-wide leaders

“I learned things that I didn’t even realize I didn’t know. This has reshaped how I think about leadership moving forward.”

Physician Leadership Academy participant

“I honed my influence and negotiation skills, and learned how to see different sides of conflict and resolve the disconnects.”

Physician Leadership Academy provides the skills and insight you need to develop into a versatile leader. Participants begin with leadership evaluations and continue their leadership development journey over nine months in three in-person modules. Participants apply concepts immediately to their own leadership challenges, informed by feedback from industry experts, faculty and peers. With cutting-edge experiential design, the modules each build upon the themes of individual, organizational, and system leadership, and they explore the following topics:

- Utilize your new knowledge and network to solve critical industry challenges
I work with health care system CEOs every day, and as we deliberate on strategic priorities, the number one question on their minds is finding the physician leaders who combine their tremendous clinical knowledge and experience with the strategic, business acumen, and influencing capabilities needed to lead. For this reason, the Physician Leadership Academy was created.
