China Spotlight: Understanding the Business Implications of the 13th Five-year Plan

In March, China's 13th Five-year Plan (13-5) was adopted by the National People's Congress of the People's Republic of China, formally putting into place the central government's economic policy blueprint that features goals such as achieving an innovation-driven development strategy and an average annual growth rate of 6.5% to 7%. Beyond these and other high-level priorities, 13-5 has important implications for how multinational companies (MNCs) conduct business and plan their market strategies in China, according to George Warnock, Americas leader of Deloitte Chinese Services Group, and Ken DeWoskin, independent senior advisor to the Chinese Services Group. They discuss nuances of 13-5's priorities and explain potential impacts on MNCs of industries named "strategically important" in 13-5.
