China Spotlight: Supply Side Reform and Considerations for Multinational CFOs

It remains to be seen how widely and quickly Supply Side Reform (SSR), intended to help solve China's overcapacity in core industries will be implemented. Because SSR could have significant impacts on China's fiscal resources and foreign trade policies it is important that CFOs of multinational companies active in China track its implementation carefully. CFOs can also consider steps they can take to address possible negative impacts and growth opportunities SSR could pose for their China business activities and operations.
