

Indirect Tax dispute resolution in the UAE

Managing and mitigating indirect tax disputes

Managing tax disputes and risks has never been more important due to rapid developments across taxes in the Middle East. Developing a strategy from the outset ensures the highest levels of quality and success. In each case, we seek to identify the client's unique circumstances and needs, helping to develop an efficient case management and dispute resolution strategy. We bring extensive regional and cross-border capabilities to effectively manage Indirect Tax disputes including deep specialism in Value Added Tax (VAT), excise tax, customs duties and penalties.

Our approach

Deloitte offers an integrated approach to Indirect Tax dispute resolution and advises on the entire spectrum of tax controversy – before, during and after any dispute resolution process. In the United Arab Emirates (UAE), this will include assistance with advice related to audits, tax assessments, reconsiderations, and appeals to the Tax Disputes Resolution Committee (TDRC) and Courts.

Dispute resolution process

Where taxpayers disagree with a decision or assessment of the FTA, the first step is to submit an application for reconsideration. If the outcome of the reconsideration is not favorable to the taxpayer, the taxpayer may appeal further to TDRC and appellate Courts. Specific procedures and deadlines must be followed in respect of every appeal. Our team provides an expert view and understanding of the intricate procedural aspects of the Courts in partnership with the local law firms who have vast experience of the UAE legal and Court's process over many years.
